BRITAIN THREATENS a combination of automobile companies "to repel the American invasion."

That means General Motors increasing shipments to all Europe, with big assembly plants.

It means also "Ford's Limited" $35,000,000 European company, promising to build 200,000 Ford cars a year in England alone, and right away.

Great Britain will not find it easy to "repel" that invasion. You can't beat champions with cripples, no matter how many cripples you assemble. American manufacturers will show Britain how to use British labor and materials profitably. Britain should be grateful, instead of talking "invasion."

Scientists say the "misuse of leisure by the masses" will make necessary the creation of a special governing class, that will compel the masses to work more earnestly, use their leisure more intelligently.

It is a little too soon to judge the masses and their "misuse of leisure." They haven't much leisure now and until recently they didn't have any, except on Sundays.

Those that really misuse leisure and opportunity are not the poor amusing themselves in their own way, but the rich that have power, and lack intelligence or ambition to make good use of it.

Dr. Elliott, of New York's Ethical Culture School, says those that teach ethics to children should have "a sense of sin." The teacher, says the learned doctor, "should first convict himself of sin."

Just how convicting yourself of sin would help your pupils is not clear. Abelard was a good teacher, but otherwise imperfect.

More important than a sense of sin, is knowledge of evolution, including the fact that children, if normal, all pass through a state of savagery, even of animalism.

Emotions appear in human babies in the same order as in the animal ranks, first fear, then anger, then jealousy. The Apache's cruelty is born in them, and the Arab's pilfering.

Whoever expects children to be angels, forgets his own childhood.

Dr. Johnson did not like the saying "Who rules o'er freemen must himself be free." He said "You might as well say, who drives fat oxen, must himself be fat."

A teacher needs knowledge and common sense kindness.

At noon today the army monoplane Question Mark had almost reached 150 hours of continuous flight, surpassing by many hours all records for all kinds of machines, lighter than air included

That is an honor to our army, our airplane and engine manufacturers, and it is important to future flying for various reasons.

One difficulty in ocean flight has been the great weight of enough gasoline to make the distance.

All remember the difficulty that ocean fliers have had getting off the ground.

Lindbergh, shortly after his return, told this writer "The sensible route to Europe is via the Azores, with a stop there, to take on fuel, starting out with a lighter load."

Question Mark proves that no stop is necessary. One, or several planes could fly up from the Azores, taking fuel to transatlantic fliers.

Mid-ocean stations might answer the same purpose.

Airmail will be able to go straight through from coast to coast, re-fueling in full flight, and passengers should soon make the ocean to ocean trip inside of 24 hours. Eventually, more powerful fuel and less weight, or wireless power will solve the problem.

When iron boats, run by steam, were first suggested for transatlantic work serious engineers said that even if they could cross the ocean they could not possibly carry enough coal for the trip.

Rabbi Feinberg, says science and religion should unite, not quarrel. "Humanity needs a more scientific religion, and a more religious science," says the rabbi.

The wise Greek told the Tyrant that the world would become happy when kings became philosophers, or philosophers became kings. The Tyrant did not like the suggestion.

Religion resents any suggestion of change or modification, and quite naturally since modification is confession of an earthly origin.

FUCHS TERMED 'LIAR' BY COUNCILLOR DOWD

Following a vitriolic speech by Councillor John F. Dowd of Roxbury, in which he referred to President Fuchs of the Braves as "the liar" and to Vice-President Charles F. Adams as "the narrow-minded hypocrite," the Boston City Council today unanimously adopted an order providing for careful regulation of Sunday baseball permits. The order, introduced by Dowd, calls for appointment of a committee of five to draw up rules and regulations for these permits. Its adoption by the Council means [illegible] action will be delayed on the Braves' [illegible] permit.

The Council by a vote of 18 to 4 [illegible] balloting for a 1929 president, scheduled for [illegible] time in the future. As a result of the Sunday sports "bribery" investigation, two bitterly hostile factions have arisen, each with presidential candidates.

Dowd's introduction of the Sunday sports permits order, which gave the accused councillors a chance to strike back at their accusers the Braves management, came immediately after Mayor Nichols' opening address.

Dowd said the Council must take action to protect the public against Sunday price-raising, and he accused the Braves of trying to coerce the Council into issuing the permit, for games at Braves Field, without proper deliberation and safeguaards.

'Must Protect Public' on Sunday Prices, Says Dowd

Councillor Dowd said:

"I introduce this order for the protection of the public As matters stand, there is no protection for the public from these financiers who manage the Boston baseball clubs as to the price of admission for Sunday games.

"We should fix absoulte authority in advance. Whether the prices are to be 25 cents of $2 we should let these fellows know that the public must be protected from these gentlemen who come in here and thing Boston is a 'hick' town.

DOWD HEADS, BASEBALL PERMIT COMMITTEE

The City Council committee to regulate Sunday baseball permits, as provided in Councillor Dowd's order, was appointed by Acting President Frederick E. Dowling as follows: Councillors John F. Dowd, Edward M. Gallagher, Thomas AcSahon, Henry Parkman, Jr., and Robert Gardiner Wilson, Jr.

Plane Near Crash in Fuelling

Metropolitan Airport, Los Angeles, Jan. 7 (AP)—The record-breaking flight of the army endurance plane Question Mark came near disaster today when refueling plane No. 1 struck an air pocket and dropped to within three feet of the big Fokker.

Maj. Carl Spatz, flight commander, handling the nozzle of the gasoline hose, was obliged to duck into the cabin of the Question Mark to avoid injury.

At 2:37 (Boston time) the plane had passed its 148th hour in the air.

The motors were behaving nicely and the weather in the San Fernando Valley, in the vicinity of the field, was clear.

With all duration records in aviation tucked under their belts, the brave crew of five men, commanded by Maj. Carl Spatz, still refused to rest content. They were determined to keep the giant Fokker aloft until the three motors, not they, become completely exhausted.

NOBILE'S OWN STORY OF RESCUE FROM ICE FLOE TOLD FOR FIRST TIME

EXCLUSIVE!

By GENERAL UMBERTO NOBILE

Commander-in-Chief of the Ill-Fated North Pole Expedition, Made Aboard the Dirigible Italia Last Summer.

Rome, Jan. 7—On the evening of the 22d of June, 1928, at 7:30 p. m., Greenwich time, a great and unexpected event broke the monotony of our sojourn on the ice pack.

Two hydroplanes, flying the Swedish colors, approached our tent, and after having located it with the help of our smoke, flew straight over us, cleverly dropping to us some very judiciously chosen provisions which reached us intact, with the exception of a bottle of whiskey, which went to pieces.

In the five packet each entrusted to a little red parachute, were five dry batteries, a basket containing a pneumatic boat with oars, a musket with ammunition, two medicine chests with everything necessary for our injuries, such as cigarettes, oranges and a second bottle of whiskey, which was received with great joy

On one of the yellowish paper wrappers of the packets was written:

"From the Swedish Expedition:

"Ostra Gruppen:

"If you can find a landing ground for aeroplanes fitted with skis (min. 250 m.) place the red parachutes on the leeward side."

Now a suitable ground of the dimensions required by the Swedes had been previously located some days ago, and, providentially, at a short distance from us, at about 150 meters.

This, according to what Trojani and Viglieri told me, who had inspected and measured it, was an ideal place, absolutely

FLU KEEPS 1600 LYNN PUPILS FROM SCHOOL

Twenty-two teachers and 1600 pupils were absent from Lynn schools today, school officials reported, and most of the absentees were believed to be ill with influenza.

This report came a short time after a 12th death had been added to the list of influenza victims at the Soldiers' Home in Chelsea.

The 1600 pupils absent from school constitute 10 per cent of Lynn's entire student personnel.

There were 132 new cases of influenza reported today to the State Department of Health from all parts of the Commonwealth.

The death list from influenza at the Soldiers' Home in Chelsea grew to 12 today as 132 new cases of the malady were being reported to the State Department of Health from all parts of the Commonwealth.

Only one case was reported on the corresponding date last year.

For the first six days of this year there have been 825 cases reported.

FIRE OUSTS HUB POLICE OFFICIALS

Fire in the office of Capt. William R. Livingstone on the third floor of police headquarters today drove from the upper part of the building a score or more police officials and a number of civilian employes, including several young women.

Supt. of Police Michael H. Crowley made a personal tour of inspection of the rooms on the third, fourth, and fifth floors to see that all occupants were out. He suffered from exposure to smoke, but recovered without medical attention.

Inspector Timothy Sheehan, armed with a portable fire extinguisher, crawled through the dense smoke in Capt. Livingston's office and attacked the blaze.

He, like Supt. Crowley, suffered from the smoke which he inhaled, but was able to resume his duties. Police Comr. Herbert A. Wilson did not leave his office on the top floor.

Finds Jewelry on Cemetery Grave

Police were today endeavoring to check up the ownership of 20 watches, six fountain pens and a tray of watch chains, all found on a grave in St. Augustine's cemetery, Dorchester st., South Boston.

The discovery was made by Patrolman John P. McMorrow of the City Point station. The authorities hoped to identify the valuables, however, as part of the loot taken from a South End pawnshop Friday in a holdup.

$7,500,000 INSURANCE CUT IN GOODWIN BILL

A bill was filed in the Massachusetts House of Representatives today by Frank A. Goodwin, former State registrar of motor vehicles, providing for a State fund whereby compulsory automobile insurance will be supplied at cost.

Passage of this bill will save $7,500,000 a year for automobile owners of Massachusetts, according to Goodwin.

"Massachusetts says to its motor vehicle owners, 'You must be insured

CITY COUNCIL ORDERS COMMITTEE FOR SUNDAY BALL CONTROL

DOWD BRANDS FUCHS AS 'LIAR' ADAMS AS HYPOCRITE

"We must tell Mr. Frank Stevens of the Outdoor Recreation League and Mr. Delaney, who gets 15-cent shots for his hot dogs and his tonics, what price they must pay for their licenses in future.

"I think it necessary also to determine whether the permit shall be for one week or for a year.

"I think it very fortunate that the city council did hold up this Sunday baseball matter. Otherwise the Braves would have the carte blanche right to rob the public and charge any price they wish.

"That is why I ask the appointment of a committee of five members of the city council to fix the rules and regulations concerning these permits. It was right that the council should deliberate on this matter.

"I for one shall vote against this permit to the Braves and shall continue the policy that I have maintained for the past three weeks even though it may mean political defeat for me, until the Braves' management gives us assurances that the people will not be overcharged on Sunday games.

"The Boston theaters have increased their Sunday rates 20 to 50 per cent and are giving worse shows than on weekdays.

"We must have some guarantee on these matters to protect the public. We resent Fuchs, the liar, and Adams, the narrow-minded hypocrite, coming in here and trying to blackjack and coerce us into issuing any permit without proper deliberation."

Order Adopted, Election of President Postponed

Following Councillor Dowd's speech, the council, by unanimous vote, adopted his order.

Councillor John I. Fitzgerald of Ward 3 then moved that the council ballo tfor a president. This brought Councillors Ward, Dowd and Deveney to their feet.

Ward said:

"Mr. Chairman: I ask that balloting for a president be deferred to another meeting."

Councillor Dowd—I ask now if the chair will appoint the committee of five.

Acting President Dowling:—I will wait until I have a chance to look over the order. I must now refer to the order of Councillor Fitzgerald that we ballot for a president. All those in favor will say "Age." (The response was weak.) All those against will say "No." (It was obviously almost a unanimous vote.)

Councillor Fitzgerald: I doubt the vote and ask a roll call.

At the end of the poll of the council, the vote stood 18 to 4 against electing a president today. Those in favor of balloting today were Arnold, Fitzgerald, Green, Keene.

The council elected Councillor Charles G. Keene as chairman of the executive committee until a new president is chosen.

The council also passed a loan order of Mayor Nichols for $22,000,000 in anticipation of taxes. This is an annual loan order introduced the first meeting day of each year.

A crowd filled the gallery of the council chamber to witness the result of the meeting

The attorney-general's department will send out notices tonight to a majority of those on the list of contributors of the Outdoor Recreation League to appear for interviewing in connection with the Sunday sports investigation.

Warner to Call Most of Sunday Sports Donors

This announcement was made today by Asst. Atty.-Gen. Gerald Callahan, who is working with Atty.-Gen. Joseph E. Warner in probing the allegation that the Boston Braves, through the Outdoor Recreation League, violated the Corrupt Practices act.

The charge has been made that the list, which bears the names of prominent sporting men, press agents, the Braves Field hot dog concessionaire and others, was drawn up to hide an expenditure by the baseball club of $30,000 to put over Sunday sports.

Following the disclosure of this much-discussed list at the Finance Commission's "bribery" investigation last week, came, today, the revealing of another list which is on file with the Secretary of State—a list of individuals to whom payments totaling $29,770 were made by the Outdoor Recreation League in connection with the Sunday sports campaign.

This second list, which shows where the $30,000 went, regardless of where it actually came from, includes the following: James J. Twohig, for speaking at rallies and expenses, $500; Walter Gautreau and distributors in Somerville, $214; Claude B. Davidson, office and expenses, $479, and expenses, $72.

Atty. Samuel Hoar, counsel for the Braves management, was in conference with Atty.-Gen. Warner and Asst. Atty.-Gen. Callahan during the forenoon.

Sabbath League Spent $11,000 to Fight Sports

"We are planning to investigate every phase of the Sunday sports situation," said Callahan later.

"The so-called fund of $30,000 will be taken up, as also will the alleged distribution of from 5000 to 7000 Braves ball game tickets bearing a political 'ad' for Walter E. Jackson on the back.

"Anything that seems to fall under the provisions of the Corrupt Practices Act will be thoroughly sifted.

"We intend to interview a majority of the persons whose names appear on the list of contributors to the Outdoor Recreation League's fund of $30,000, as filed with the secretary of state, and notices will be issued to them tonight.

The Finance Commission will resume its inquiry tomorrow in Tremont Temple instead of at the State House and it is likely William G. Lynch and other city councillors will be called on to testify and defend themselves against the story told by Judge Emil Fuchs, president of the Braves, who said Lynch solicited a bribe for a bloc of 13 councilmen.

A new rumor, that a fund of $15,000 was divided among several individuals who thought they could grease the ways for the passage of Sunday sports, was in circulation today.

Incidentally, in the Sunday baseball connection, a report of the Save Our Sabbath campaign committee, opposed to Sunday sports, which was filed with Secretary of State as against only 20 for the first six days of 1928.

The 12th victim at the Soldiers' Home is Otis Whitwell, 88, of Falmouth, a Civil War veteran.

The names of five other Civil War veterans were added to the danger list today, making a total of 17 on that list.

Health Classes at Y. W. C. A. Jan. 14

Health Education classes of the Boston Young Women's Christian Association will be gin Jan. 14, in the new building at 140 Clarendon st. Though the building is not complete, the pool and gymnasium are ready for use.

A protective medical examination is required by all persons taking classes in the Health Education Department, therefore, Miss Ruth Page Sweet, director of the department, urges that all girls register and take this examination as quickly as possible.

Appointments should be made for this medical examination, by calling Kenmore 7940 and asking for the Health Education Department.

Morning, afternoon and evening classes have been arranged in both gymnasium and pool.

Old Shoemaker Friend of Coolidge Lunches at White House

Washington, Jan. 7 (AP)—James Lucey, Northampton, Mass., shoemaker, today kept a promise to an old friend.

Seven years ago Lucey assured Calvin Coolidge, then vice-president that he would visit him in Washington. Today he kept that promise and chatted with the President for more than 15 minutes in the executive office, and then had luncheon with him.

Lucey said that his conversation with the President today dealt with reminiscences of happenings in Northampton. He was particularly impressed with the President's physical condition and thought Mr. Coolidge was looking as fine as he had ever seen him.

Car Loadings Up

Atchison handled 31,790 cars of revenue freight in week ended January 4, against 28,177 the same week last year.

MYSTERY GAS POISONING OF LYNN CHILD

For the second time within a week, ten-year-old Dorothy Kent of [illegible] st., Lynn, was found unconscious from gas poisoning in her home by her father, Harry Kent, today.

The child, who was ill with blood poisoning, was taken to the Lynn Hospital and her name placed on the danger list, after a policeman had used an inhalator on her.

Last week she was partly overcome with her brother and sister, but the arrival of their father saved the children from any serious effects.

Police eliminated gas jets and heater as the cause of the mysterious fumes, and with the Lynn Gas & Electric Light Co., started an investigation to locate the leak.

According to the police Kent said that one night last week he returned to the house to find Dorothy, Evelyn, 16, and Clifford, 14, all partially unconscious. He opened windows and revived them, after which he searched for gas, but could not find it.

Today Kent said Dorothy was alone in the house, the other children having gone to school, when he arrived for his lunch. He said the little girl was lying on the floor in a stupor, and at first the father thought it might be due to a wound in her right leg, in which blood poisoning had set in.

CERO IN FINAL PLEA FOR LIFE

Superior Criminal Court and the assistant district attorney then told Judge Louis Cox he was not ready to go on with the motion for a new trial.

McDonnell said he was investigating "an important feature" of the case, and would not be ready to divulge his information until 4 p. m. tomorrow.

Judge Cox issued a habeas corpus ordering the presentation of Cero in court tomorrow and the prisoner was then taken back to State Prison.

Cero has two chances to escape the chair. He may be granted a new trial or Governor Allen may reprieve him.

It is understood the Governor wishes final disposition made of the new trial motion before he, himself, considers the case officially.

Judge Michael J. Creed of municipal court today postponed for one week the hearing of Miss Philomena Romano, 21-year-old East Boston girl, charged with perjury in connection with the Cero case.

Miss Romano is alleged to have told Judge Cox the killing—which she witnessed—was done by another man than Cero.

Back Bay Girl and Youth Stall in 1899 Gas Buggy

"The old gray mare ain't what she used to be" but the "benzine buggy" reports progress—now and then.

George H. Waterman, Jr., 16, of Hammond st., Newton, came to Boston, today, his 1899 Schacht "horseless carriage" roaring through traffic at five miles an hour.

That is it roared for awhile, then coughed and sputtered to a stop.

George tinkered a while. But it was no use. His fair companion, Miss Frances Winlock, 16, of Marlboro st., Boston, suggested it was time to move as the crowd on Washington st. was growing every second.

George agreed. But how?

A hastily summoned tow car solved the difficulty and dragged the de luxe buggy back to Newton.

George is optimistic, however, and insists that once this fit of "nerves" is over he will have first rate transportation to the Noble and Greenough school, where he is a student.

RICKARD'S BODY IS ON WAY HOME

Miami Beach, Fla., Jan. 7—The body of Tex Rickard was on the way home today.

Not to the Kansas farm home where he was born, nor to the plains of the Texas Panhandle, where he rode herd.

Not to the Yukon, where he prospected for gold, nor to Cripple Creek, Gold Field or Tonopah, where he sparred with a flinty-eyed fate for a livelihood and gained the reputation of dealing an honest game.

He was going home to Broadway, where he planned and made his greatest fights and where he raised the most impressive monument to his success as a genius of the ring.

Loser after a four-day fight with acute gangrenous appendicitis, Rickard was mourned by the colony where he had made a winter home for his wife, the baby Maxine Texas Rickard, whom he adored, and himself.

HIS FIRST "VACATION"

It was the first time in fifty-seven years of hard and busy life that he had found time to play. He was enjoying leisure in company with men he had formerly known only as customers for the choice seats at his big fights.

Rickard was not a church member, but Father William Barry of the Catholic church, to which Mrs. Rickard belongs, officiated at brief services before the body was taken to the car now bearing it to New York.

Mrs. Rickard announced that the pallbearers at the funeral in New York will be Richard A. Hoyt, John M. Chapman, Col. John S. Hammond, William Muldoon, Harvey Gibson, J. P. McGuire, Jack Dempsey and Walter Fields.

With the body on the funeral train as it rolled through the South today was his youthful widow, Mrs. Maxine Rickard, and Jack Dempsey.

Walter Fields, brother of W. C. Fields, the comedian, and an associate of Rickard for many years, and Steve Hannagan, Rickard's personal representative in Miami Beach, completed the funeral party.

ESTATE 5 MILLION

The funeral car is expected to arrive at the Pennsylvania station in New York at 10:19 o'clock tomorrow morning. The body will be taken to the funeral chapel of Frank Campbell, where Rudolph Valentino, Enrico Caruso and others beloved on Broadway have lain in state.

It will remain there until the funeral Wednesday. The public will be admitted between 2 and 6 p. m. tomorrow and from 8 p. m. tomorrow on through the night.

This casket weighs 2200 pounds and is of solid bronze. So heavy was it that it required 12 policemen and six firemen to carry it from the chapel to the waiting hearse.

Just how much wealth Rickard accumulated in his career will not be known until his will is filed, but estimates place his fortune at about $5,000,000. Most of this thought to have been made in the stock market in recent months, will go to his wife, Mrs. Maxine Rickard. His 18-months-old daughter, Maxine, is the beneficiary of a $500,000 trust fund and a $200,000 trust fund was likewise created for the mother of his first wife, Flora Haig.

He was manager of the Garden under a $30,000 a year contract, which had 18 years to run.

Rickard's fear of surgery and aversion to hospitals long ago prevented removal of the infected appendix that finally caused his death.

A few days before leaving New York for the Southland Rickard was receiving newspapermen in his offices at Madison Square Garden. One of them told him of an operation he had to undergo for sinus trouble.

"You shouldn't do that," Tex said. "Don't let them cut you. No one should have operations. No one should be cut like that. It isn't necessary."

Tex told how he had avoided an operation for removal of the appendix for 12 years by having his side "frozen" after each attack.

GOV. ROOSEVELT ACTS IN HUB LOVE TANGLE

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 7 (INS)—Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt held his first extradition hearing today and it proved to be extremely complicated.

Mrs. Hannah Lang of Boston wanted her former husband, Rudolph Lang of South Bergen, N. J., and New York, extradited to Boston to face an indictment charging him with failure to support her four children.

The Langs were married in 1914. Lang had been previously married, but he thought he had divorced his first wife. In 1927 Lang's first wife appeared on the scene. She insisted they never had been legally divorced. Lang immediately arranged to have his first wife divorce him and he also had his second marriage annulled.

The second Mrs. Lang told Governor Roosevelt she was glad to have her marriage annulled. All legal obstacles now have been removed for the remarriage of the Langs.

"Whether you live together or not you should remarry, and remove any stigma from these children," Governor Roosevelt told the couple as he gazed at a photograph of the four children.

"If you fail to make good each week I will grant the extradition and send you to Boston where you may be placed in jail," Roosevelt warned Lang.

RECORD PLANE NEAR CRASH

As the big brown and gold plane circled over the field throughout the night, the hope that the ship's daring mechanic, Sergt. Roy Hooe, had restored the weakening motors to regularity grew into an assurance.

All three motors were running smoothly at the 144th hour of sustained flight.

When the motors recuperated from their spasmodic ailment, optimism replaced anxiety on the part of the watchers on the ground. There was no saying how much longer the Question Mark would soar over the field. Airport officials predicted that it may be a few more days before the great plane is forced to return to earth.

FREED WOMAN THANKS CHIEF

Throwing herself into his arms, Mrs. Rose Spogard, 42, through tears, thanked Chief Inspector William Kane at Lynn police headquarters today for his work in obtaining a pardon for her last Wednesday from Governor Fuller.

Mrs. Spogard had served 15 years and nine months in the women's reformatory at Sherborn up to the time of her pardon. She was sentenced originally to life imprisonment for murder of her husband, Harry Spogard.

Chief Inspector Kane was the man who arrested her 16 years ago and prosecuted her in court, but learning of her excellent record at Sherborn set about obtaining a pardon.

SEES HIS GIRL AT WHAT PRICE

Northampton, Jan. 7—His insistence on seeing his sweetheart, a Smith College student, on the eve of his departure on a world tour, resulted in George H. Woolley of Hyde st., Newton Highlands, being arrested for driving with last year's plates, today.

With only $8 in his pocket Woolley was fined $100 in local district court for driving without insurance, but he got word to the girl and she raised the remainder among her classmates, thereby saving him from durance vile.

According to the police, Woolley plans to sail tomorrow with his father for a trip around the world. Anxious to see his girl before he left, the young man took his sister's car, bearing 1928 plates, from the family garage, and drove to Northampton.

'WITCH' TRIAL OPENS TODAY; 3 INDICTED

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

York, Pa., Jan. 7—A "witch murder" trial—a case unique in the history of American jurisprudence got under way here today. John Blymyer, 28, William Hess, 18, and John Curry, 14, were this morning indicted, charged with brutally slaying Nelson D. Rehmeyer, an aged farmer recluse whom they bludgeoned and burned to death.

The superstition-ridden defendants confessed they killed Rehmeyer, whom they believed to be a "witch," while trying to obtain a lock of his hair to break a spell they thought he had cast over them. They planned to bury the witchlock eight feet underground in mock interment. But when they invaded the home of the farmer-"witch" in the dead of the night he fought back, and they killed him.

TRIAL BEGINS.

Before the trial of John Blymyer, alleged "hex doctor," began today, Blymyer, Wilbur Hess and John Curry were indicted by the grand jury for the alleged slaying of Nelson Rehmeyer in a struggle to obtain locks of his hair and thereby break the "spell" they believed Rehmeyer had cast over them.

Curry, a boy of 14, was arraigned first before Judge Niles. He stood with cap in hand and apparently not knowing what it was all about, pleaded not guilty.

Hess, a lanky youth of 18, also entered a plea of not guilty. When Blymyer, a slim, blond man of 28, was arraigned, his counsel entered a plea for separate trial and the motion was granted.

Blymyer's trial began immediately before Judge Sherwood. The courtroom was crowded. The wife and two daughters of the slain Rehmeyer sat among the first row of spectators, their eyes looking red and swollen.

Juror number one was promptly selected. He was William E. Sprenkle, a retired business man. He was asked no questions concerning witchcraft or black magic.

Robbers Miss $1900 in Coal Co. Safe

Yeggs missed $1900 in a safe of the Malden Coal Company, Linden ave., Malden, it was discovered today by the proprietor, Frank A. Richardson, when he opened for business.

'L' MOTORMAN GOES ON TRIAL TOMORROW

Bernard McDonald, Boston 'El' motorman on the trestle over [illegible] derailed in the trestle over Harrison ave. and Beach st. last July, killing three persons and injuring more than 20, goes on trial tomorrow morning in Suffolk Superior Criminal Court, charged with operating a public conveyance in a grossly negligent manner.

McDonald's case was scheduled to be heard today before Judge Wilford Gray, but a continuance was requested by the defense on the ground that Chief Defense Counsel James H. Vahey was in Washington, making a plea before the U. S. Supreme Court.

Mr. Vahey, through one of his assistants, asked at least seven days delay, asserting that on Thursday of this week, he must appear before the Supreme Court of Massachusetts.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Frederick T. Doyle, representing the government, heatedly opposed continuance, claiming the rights of the people were involved and he had given Atty. Vahey ten days notice of the date of the trial.

Chief Justice Perley Hall ordered the trial to begin tomorrow.

The offense with which McDonald is charged is punishable by two and a half years in jail or a fine of $1000, or both.

BOY WITNESS IN NURSE SLAYING

A 15-year-old boy is regarded by police and the district attorney as their star witness in connection with the alleged slaying of his aunt, Miss Mary E. Lee, Somerville woman.

The arrest was made by Capt. Damery and Officers D. M. O'Connell.

Charged with murder of Miss Lee, a nurse, Arthur J. Manning, 41, of Central st., Somerville, was held without bail today when arraigned in Somerville Court. He pleaded not guilty and the case was continued to Jan. 14.

The boy who is expected to be the star witness is Wesley Lee, [illegible] of Savin Hill ave., Dorchester, according to police. He had been living with his aunt in Manning's home since last November, police declare. Now he lives with an uncle.

The case will be presented to the Middlesex County Grand Jury, it is promised by Asst. Dist. Atty. Warren L. Bishop, but meanwhile an autopsy will be performed on the body of the nurse.

Miss Lee's death was entered on her death certificate as caused by injuries received accidentally in a fall. She was buried two weeks ago from the Manning home.

City Worker Fired, Was Away on Farm

Commissioner of Civil Service Elliott H. Goodwin today notified "a Boston city department" that its request for the reinstatement of one of its employes, discharged "because of absence," is disapproved.

The commissioner declared an investigation has shown that the employe's absence was due to his being confined at the state farm. The employe, he said, has just been released and is on parole.

Sergeant, All Later and Robes, Grabs Cheese Artists

Once under lather and once under wraps, Sergt. Dominic Church, rocketed out of Al Maramba's Municipal Barber Shop in Revere, today to capture three alleged cheese flim-flam artists.

Two men who have been sought for a year entered the shop and asked if Maramba liked cheese. Maramba said he did, but while one man was cutting a slice, the barber cried to Church, "Pinch him; pinch him."

Church, covered with lather, chased one man down the street and arrested him. He was booked as Mike Spendello of Brooklyn, and was charged with larceny.

Sergt. Church was just arranging himself, this time for a haircut first, when two men entered and said, "Where's the other guy?"

Sergeant again shot out of the chair and, with his barber's wraps flapping and aided by Traffic Officer James Dooling, caught Vincent Stanzione, 27, of Mott st., New York, and Steve Oniello, 31, of Brooklyn. They, also were booked for larceny.

Washington, Jan. 7 (AP)—A second levy of $100,000 of bonds belonging to Harry M. Blackmer, missing "Teapot Dome" witness, was made today by United States Marshal Edgar C. Snyder, acting under a District of Columbia Supreme Court decision holding Blackmer in contempt for his refusal to testify.

AGED FOLK SOB AS THEY LEAVE COOPER HOME

In seven limousines lent by sympathizers, 18 of the aged inmates of the bankrupt Cooper Homestead, Dedham, journeyed to the Florence Crittenden Home, Bedford.

Because of the financial collapse of the institution where, so they believed, they had insured themselves of shelter and care for life by the paying over of all their savings, the old folks must now depend upon the State for their future support.

The departure of the four men and 14 women from the Cooper Homestead was accompanied by tears and demonstrations of affection between them and the home's former superintendent, Mrs. Josephine Lawrence. Mrs. Lawrence was kissed goodby by Mrs. Mary Arnold, 95, the oldest of the inmates.

Many of the aged men and women, burdened even by the weight of their scanty personal possessions, had to be assisted down the steps and into the waiting machines.

The transfer of the 18 to Bedford was superintended by Louis R. Lipp, local agent of the State Welfare Society.

GEN. NOBILE TELLS OF HEROES' ALTERNATE HOPE AND DESPAIR

COMMANDER URGED HASTE, FEARING ICE-PACK BREAK

level, without cracks and roughness.

It was necessary to hasten because if the temperature rose the snow would begin to melt, and thus conditions for landing would not be so favorable.

I prepared the following wireless message to the Swedish Expedition:

"To the Swedish Expedition—Virgo Bay:

"Cordial thanks for your visit and for all the useful things you dropped down to us. A landing ground for aeroplanes fitted with skis exists southwest of our tent at a distance of about 150 meters. The red parachutes will be laid out on the leeward side. The length of the field is 325 meters and the width 250 meters. It is absolutely flat. I would suggest to come before the weather conditions, now so favorable, will change. Very cordial greetings.

"NOBILE."

But it was impossible to transmit this message. The wireless communications for some days had been very bad. The Citta Di Milano either did not reply to our calls, or, if it did, it had received our signals very badly.

These difficulties in the way of communicating, of which we did not know the cause, made us very anxious indeed.

The wireless was not only salvation for us, but also the worst of torture. Every time one of our calls remained unanswered an exasperating uneasiness prevailed and, if the silence were protracted excessively, discouragement invaded our souls.

The optimism which compelled me to inspire my companions vanished and a painful silence reigned in our tent. Then began criticisms, angry ejaculations and recriminations.

Thinks Kings Bay Men Neglected Radio Calls

We believed that the people at Kings Bay had not yet understood the necessity of listening at any cost for our calls and therefore neglected to avail themselves of the means best adapted for receiving the faint messages from our transmitting station.

Perhaps they had not yet got a clear idea of the precariousness of our situation, they had to live as we were living in the middle of a pack in continual motion, on a small piece of ice with two wounded men unable to move. And other doubts assailed us.

They had formidable means at their disposal: ice-breakers, hydroplanes, aeroplanes fitted with skis, sleighs, but would they use all at the same time or try to succeed with one alone?

Would they have given up or delayed using others, thus committing an irreparable error?

Without doubt, uncertainties and errors were inevitable in such difficult circumstances but it seemed to me that all would have been much better if they had been able to listen to me and had taken into consideration my news, suggestions, advice and ideas.

But to do so it was necessary for them to have made every effort to receive our messages, as it appeared evident that they were not yet convinced of this necessity.

It seemed that they thought it sufficient to know our precise position.

After reflecting for a long time, I was convinced that the aeroplanes fitted with skis, and the ice-breaking ships, would be the most effective means for rescuing us.

But the ice-breakers were still far off. The Malygin seemed to advance with much difficulty and we had no news of the Krassin.

For the moment all our hopes were centered in the aeroplanes. But at King's Bay were they persuaded of the necessity to hurry, that the fine weather would not last long, that the condition now so favorable for the landing of the aeroplanes might change as summer advanced?

All these doubts, all these questions without answer, the impossibility for us—on account of the bad working of the wireless—to let them know, to make them clearly understand the necessity of acting quickly, but still more the lack of precise knowledge of the plans of those directing the work of rescue, exasperated us and sometimes even filled us with despair.

Arctic Hero

BREAKS SILENCE

Gen. Umberto Nobile, hero of the Italia expedition, who breaks his long silence, to reveal the facts of his experiences, in his own defense.

Last Mesage

I had often tried to summarize this state of things, which kept us in a continual state of anxiety, in a wireless message; but I had never succeeded in transmitting it.

The following is the last that was received by the Citta di Milano, fragmentarily only, on the morning of the twenty-third of June:

"Thanks. Recovered almost all this morning, however combustibles are scarce and food sufficient only to prolong our resistance for 20 days at the most on very reduced rations.

"I think the danger of our situation not yet well understood. Out of six persons only four are well today, even counting Troiani now ill and Behounek absolutely incapable of moving on the ice. I hope to be able to walk again in 15 days. Practically there are only three persons well.

"In the event of breaking of ice impossible to move. In which case Cecioni in extreme danger because complicated fracture of leg is incurable here and it is impossible for us to carry him. Therefore, urgent aerial transport of Cecioni who would be followed by Behounek and the others.

"I am convinced that landing ground for airplane close by allows transport not only of said persons but of all.

"However, there is no time to lose. So far we have had marvelous weather during which it could be done.

"If there are three hours' good weather tomorrow, profit by it to send Swedish aeroplanes on skis. Don't delay until day after because it might be too late.

"Perhaps you have not sufficiently considered danger of fogs during which neither sleighs nor aeroplanes can reach us nor perhaps could we give our position.

"Meanwhile if pack breaks with Cecioni, an invalid, Behounek incapable of walking and heavy, there is no hope of saving my companions.

"This I beg you consider. Make haste. You have at your disposal huge aerial means: Italians magnificent; Swedes most practical and full of enthusiasm.

"Use them at once, co-ordinate activities and when the weather is good profit by it immediately.

MY leg was completely useless, incapable of supporting the 58 kilograms (about 127 pounds) to which I was reduced; it was impossible for me to move my foot which was swollen up to the ankle. Nevertheless, I believed that my will would be enough to hasten its recovery. I hoped to be able within 15 or 20 days to begin to walk a few steps; perhaps in a month I should be able to walk normally.

A gross mistake! Because it was only after a month that I could put my foot to the ground and prudently take a few steps with the aid of crutches first, and afterwards with a stick, and it was only four months later, after various treatments, that I recovered the full use of my leg, notwithstanding that it has remained always deformed.

Urges Haste in Rescue By Air, Sea and Sleds

"Take Cecioni away, then Behounek: the others, perhaps, if they are able to carry them off in the midst of the thousands of dangers of this horrible ice pack.

"I beg you to keep me informed of your plans so that I shall be in a position to give you advice, and listen for us at least twice a day in the hours which you will choose, but in the best conditions so as not to let us waste energy in calls without reply.

"Again I beg you hurry. Put all the means you have into action: aeroplanes, ice-breakers and sleighs contemporaneously, but as soon as the weather is good, send the Swedish apparatus here. Now there is a landing ground here; in a week it might not exist.

"Don't delude yourselves that it is possible for us to reach the island alone. That is absurd since Cecioni is with us, because he will never be cured here and we are incapable of carrying him on this pack.

"If our moral strength is still great, the physical is lessening, either on account of insufficient food or the kind of life that we lead on a mass of ice of about fifty square meters."

After having transmitted a part of this message the wireless became silent again and we heard nothing further in spite of the tenacious efforts of Biagi.

The hours passed in anxious waiting. I saw danger depicted on the faces of my companions. A painful silence fell over all.

Decides Airplane Best Means for Departure

My thoughts turned again to the Swedes. They had promised us to return. Would they come that evening?

More than once I had told my companions that the simplest means of going away would be by aeroplane. In fact, it was the easiest way, the quickest, the most economical and besides also the most modern.

Meanwhile, I had reflected more than once on the order in which we should leave the pack if the Swedes descended.

First of all, I planned to send off Cecioni, because it seemed to me that his broken leg could not be cured without medical treatment. I was wrong, because 18 days later, when the Krassin came, Cecioni's leg was fortunately already cured.

Also I was quite wrong about my own fractures. My leg was completely useless, incapable of supporting the 58 kilograms (about 127 pounds), to which I was reduced. It was impossible for me to move my foot, which was swollen up to the ankle.

Nevertheless, I believed that my will would be enough to hasten its recovery. I hoped to be able within 15 or 20 days to begin to walk a few steps; perhaps in a month I should be able to walk normally.

Mistaken

A gross mistake! Because it was only after a month that I could put my foot to the ground and prudently take a few steps with the aid of crutches first, and afterward with a stick, and it was only four months later, after various treatments, that I recovered the full use of my leg, notwithstanding that it has remained always deformed.

In regard to my arm, the knitting of the ulna—completely broken—had not even begun, and I felt the two bones move freely if I made any movement.

However, at least today, as I write, it is cured. Notwithstanding, I could use my arm for all those little needs which did not require any great effort—such as eating and writing.

When afterward I dragged myself on the ice, I helped myself by using my elbow.

We two wounded, Cecioni and I, certainly constituted the greatest difficulties for our other companions who were well.

The very changing of our little miserable encampment became a grave problem, owing to our having to be carried over floating ice.

Wounded First

Besides this we were continually a burden and worry to our companions, as they were obliged to assist us in even the lowest necessities, so that our condition was truly humiliating.

There was no doubt, therefore, that the wounded, and Cecioni, above all, should leave first. In regard to myself, I did not even consider myself. All my anxieties were naturally for my companions. With Cecioni saved, I would not have been an impediment to safety for my companions.

Since the day of the airship's fall, and often afterward, I had repeatedly told my companions "not to bother about me. In no case will I be a burden on you. If Cecioni were not also wounded by this time you would have been rid of me."

This wish of mine is expressed in the following extract from the wireless message above quoted.

"If the pack breaks, with Cecioni wounded and Behounek unable to walk and heavy, there will be no hope of saving my companions."

This is why I decided that I should be the last to leave. Then I reflected.

If I remained to the last it would expose the aviator who came to get me to great risks. If any accident, even the slightest, occurred on the landing ground, he would be irremediably lost, finding himself alone with a wounded man incapable of helping him.

Therefore it was necessary that the last to leave should be the wireless operator, and Viglieri the last but one, as he was the only one able to determine astronomically the position of the tent.

After Cecioni, Behounek would leave as he was heavy, and his sight was slightly defective. It seemed to me that he would be less capable of walking. Then Troiani.

When I communicated my decision to Behounek he thanked me with great simplicity.

Meanwhile evening had now overtaken us. The sky was always blue. A light breeze came from the northwest.

The hour 8:55, the usual time for communication with the Citta di Milano, had passed without receiving any news. Every now and then the silence was broken by someone asking me what the barometer said. For some days it had been slowly falling.

We sat down to supper. The spirits of my companions were depressed. All were mute. The silence of the wireless irritated me more than ever, and I pondered over an old proposition in my mind; that of speaking clearly to my companions and saying to them:

"Will it relieve my cough quickly?"	REM will, or you can have your money back. The fact that not one customer in a thousand ever wanted it back tells the story.
"Is it harmless?"	REM is,-there's positively nothing in it to hurt you.
"Is it an experiment?"	REM is no experiment. 43 years of pharmaceutical experience are back of it.
"Does it soothe the irritation and soreness?"	That's one of the most noticeable qualities of REM. It clings to the throat, starting relief quickly. Right away you'll notice a soothing, cooling effect.
"Does it 'cut the phlegm'?"	REM does. It clears the air-passages and thus makes it easier to breathe during the day and sleep soundly at night.
"Does it taste bad?"	Not REM! It's easy to take. Even children seldom have to be coaxed to take it.
"Is it economical?"	REM is. Simple coughs usually yield to a single bottle. Remedies that don't help are expensive at any price.
"Does it claim more than it can do?"	REM is no "cure-all". We frankly tell you it's no good for anything but a cough,—but how remarkably good it is for that!
"Are all cough medicines pretty much alike?"	Indeed they aren't! No other cough medicine on the market has the same formula as REM, and "it's the formula that counts!"

ARCTIC FLIGHT HERO TELLS OF RESCUE AMID ICE FIELDS

INSIDE STORY OF DRAMA

"Let us look the situation in the face. Let us no longer rely on help from others. We can after all, save ourselves. Our broken limbs are really not an unsurmountable obstacle. If we have patience we can succeed, with the help of God."

The last solution that entered my mind was: to be ready to embark, carrying our food and clothing. When in a few weeks' time, the ice would melt, we would all embark on the big boat and navigate our way along the ice floes to the nearest coast.

Once we touched land, wherever it might be, I considered our rescue certain.

Nor was I afraid of a winter. Indeed, more than once amidst the joking protests of my companions, I had spoken of passing the next winter night among the ice.

Naturally, to save ourselves was easier to say than to do. I foresaw many risks and difficulties, but it was possible to overcome them.

On the other hand, I had always had a profound faith that at the end of one day or other, we should return to the civilized world, we should have returned to life; I had a profound faith in Divine help and in our tenacious will.

I was thinking of these things and waited for supper to end before speaking to my companions, when a faint hum reached our ears. We started up.

Viglieri and Biagi precipitated themselves out of the tent and held their ears to listen.

The hum became more accentuated; now the sound became more distinct, a light rhythm familiar to our ears.

"The aeroplanes are coming."

(The second installment of Gen. Nobile's thrilling narrative will appear in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.)

Italia Chief Unseals Lips in Defense

At last General Umberto Nobile has unsealed his lips in his own defense!

For seven months the commander-in-chief of the ill-fated Italian expedition, which flew from King's Bay, Spitzbergen, to the North Pole aboard the dirigible Italia, only to be wrecked on its return trip, remained silent under a multitude of accusations which he describes as "an ignoble tempest of calumny which broke over me."

General Nobile

When the Italia, driven by a storm, crashed on Northeast Land on May 26, 1928, the gondola carrying part of her company was smashed to bits. Seven men were swept away with the storm-tossed gas bag and were never seen again.

Nobile and eight companions, together with the radio apparatus and some supplies, were hurled upon the ice pack. There the commander of the expedition and one other lay seriously injured.

Three of the party—Professor Malgrem, a Swedish scientist, and Captains Mariano and Zappi of the Italian army—set out on foot, hoping to reach land and Malgrem was left dying on the ice. After weeks of starvation, Mariano and Zappi were rescued by the Russian ice-breaking steamer Krassin.

No fewer than 13 ships and 20 planes participated in the search for the lost explorers. Roald Amundsen, the only man who had ever reached both the North and South Poles, was lost with two companions trying to find Nobile by plane.

On June 24 Nobile was rescued by Lieut. Einar Lundborg, a Swedish flier, and was taken by plane to the Citta di Milano, his base ship at King's Bay. Later on his five companions were rescued by the Krassin.

Then burst a tempest of accusations. Either directly or by innuendo, Nobile was accused of incompetency, of mismanaging the expedition, and, most serious of all, of abandoning his associates on the ice when he himself was rescued.

His defense against the latter charge is presented in five dramatic articles, which comprise this series. Other phases of the expedition will be dealt with in other articles now in course of preparation.

The scene now opens with the Italia destroyed and Nobile and five surviving companions marooned upon the ice.

Nobile Calls Self Both Burden and a Worry

We two wounded, Cecioni and I, certainly constituted the greatest difficulties for our other companions who were well. The very changing of our little miserably encampment became a grave problem, owing to our having to be carried over floating ice. But besides this we were continually a burden and worry to our companions as they were obliged to assist us in even the lowest necessities, so that our condition was truly humiliating.—Gen. Nobile.

RESCUE CREW OF HUB BOUND SHIP

Bremen, Ger., Jan. 7 (AP)—All but two members of the crew of the German steamer Roedelheim, which sprang aleak about 600 miles east of Newfoundland, were rescued by the American steamer Saguache. The men lost were the third engineer and the ship's carpenter who were drowned.

Word of the disaster was received by the owners of the German freighter in a wireless message from the captain of the Saguache saying the vessel was doomed and he would land the Roedelheim's crew either at Portland or Halifax.

The Roedelheim, a 5600-ton freighter, sailed from Emden on December 18 for Boston and New York.

The Saguache, which visits Scandinavian ports, sailed from Gothenburg on December 24 for Portland, Boston and New York.

Cardinal Dead

Milan, Italy, Jan. 7 (AP)—Cardinal Tosi, archbishop of Milan, died at 2.45 a. m. today. He was 65 years old. He succeeded the present Pope as archbishop of Milan.

DO YOUR SHARE IN PREVENTING THE SPREAD OF INFLUENZA

The influenza epidemic, though not so virulent as in 1918, is claiming many victims. To assist in waging a successful campaign against it health officials of many centers have issued warnings and given out many common sense precautionary measures. Get plenty of sleep and as much fresh air as possible. Exercise regularly. Avoid crowds whenever possible. Eat only wholesome food. These are ways of building up bodily resistance to disease.

Many have found Vapex an invaluable aid in warding off influenza, grippe and colds of all kinds. It is extremely simple and pleasant to use. Get Vapex from your druggist, in the little square bottle and the package with the green triangle. Put a drop on your handkerchief. Breathe the vapor deeply through the nose. It keeps the head clear, prevents contagion, and will stop a cold at the start. Vapex may be used frequently, anywhere. The strength of one application lasts for an entire day. Vapex is recommended especially for all those who must mingle regularly with crowds.

GRAPHOLOGIST ANALYZES COOLIDGE WRITING

LOUISE RICE POINTS OUT FEATURES OF CHARACTER

Do you wish to have your handwriting analyzed by a famous graphologist?

The Boston Evening American has secured Miss Louise Rice, one of the most noted graphologists, to give individual study to samples of the chirography of its readers. In her introductory article, she analyzes the handwriting of President Coolidge. At the end of this article will be found directions for having your handwriting tested by Miss Rice. Her first article follows:

By LOUISE RICE

Famous Graphologist

EVERY time that I am handed the President's writing, I am struck afresh with the fact that he must often be amused when people talk about him as "inscrutable," "silent" and difficult to get to know.

Time has [illegible] a great deal to [illegible] but the popular [illegible] of a man or woman is [illegible] live the [illegible] and character.

Calvin Coolidge [illegible] one of the keenest [illegible] and whose [illegible] is persistent and [illegible] more of a [illegible] man succeeds [illegible] has always been thoroughly understood in New England, but in the rest of the country he has stood for a good deal which is subtle and mysterious, just because he is not a very talkative man, and because he has a certain element of New England quaintness—I wish that I could find a better word.

What I mean is this—that in New England, more than in any other part of the country, we encounter the salty flavor of individuality rather oftener than we might be anywhere else.

"CAL'S" CAPITALS

As a [illegible] who has dissected the characters and personalities of every famous man and woman in the different parts of the country, I think that I am a judge of this, and to me, our President has always been an intensely interesting figure, since he stood for a combination of the traits of this part of the country and of its most distinctive elements of personality.

His capitals are generally and unusually illuminating and show that he is a man of wide mental horizons and of intensive sympathies.

He is a person of deep and ardent attachments, a man to whom his really wonderful family life must afford the deepest happiness. He is a man of profound friendships, a man whose attachment to the soil is well shown in his love of his ancestral home; a man who can never be weaned away from the great simplicities of life by any state or condition in which he may have to be for a time.

Anyone who is interested in handwriting should try to find some capital C's in the handwriting of others which match those of the President's.

ARE DISTINCTIVE

He [illegible] will give a [illegible] time [illegible] are rare [illegible] and are as distinctive of the man's personality as his [illegible] and almost secret smile, always a surprise to those who have seen him only in pictures.

Calvin Coolidge started out as a lawyer. He will, I suspect, not go back to practice of law. I really know nothing about this, of course, I am only guessing, now.

But my guesses at what people will do have usually turned out to hit somewhere near the mark, since I base the guesses on what I know of the underlying elements of character as shown in handwriting.

I guess that our own Calvin Coolidge will be an organizer of some kind or other. One of those quiet men whose very presence in an organization brings order and smooth functioning. That was what he brought the White House. It's the gift of his own very special possession which he takes away.

Jugoslavia Quiet After King's Coup

Vienna, Jan. 7 (INS)—Belgrade and all Jugoslavia were reported quiet today following King Alexander's [illegible] the constitution, [illegible] Parliament and appointing a [illegible] thus making himself dictator.

Fire Loss Is $3000 in Newspaper Office

Rockland, Jan. 7—Fire caused $3000 damage to the plant of the Rockland Standard, a weekly newspaper, located at 15 Park st. The flames, which were discovered by a conductor who happened to be passing the office, were confined to the stock room. The paper will be able to publish on Thursday and Friday as usual.

Twelfth Night Revel By Women's Clubs

FORTY-THREE members of the Professional Women's Club just produced another of their brilliant annual twelfth night revels before an audience of nearly 1000 persons. Quite a "grand opera-ish" air prevailed in the Statler ballroom.

Mrs. Woodworth —Photo by White

Snowy heads beautifully coiffured, gorgeous shawls, flashing sparkling frocks and immaculate tuxedos were very much in evidence, while 11 lovely young cigarette and candy vendors plied a vigorous trade up and down the aisles.

All the medals for heroism have not been given out yet; several of the cast got up from sick beds rather than disappoint their audience. But it fell to the lot of the coauthor, coach and costume designer, Mrs. Helen Alden Woodworth to play the part of the giant's wife when word came at the last minute that Miss Ida L. Gibbs was too ill to carry on.

The play, oh yes! was the thing. It was a splendid vehicle for the diversified talents of the many players, artists and entertainers. "Jack's Beanstalk" is a fabulous fantasy built around a fairy tale, Goethe's Faust, and four famous historical figures.

Grace Warner Gulesian, one of the composers of the incidental music, and Bertha S. Davis, the president, certainly made a stunning king and queen of the revels in their resplendent royal robes. The medieval costumes of their "ladies and gentlemen in waiting" aroused much favorable comment.

The scene was laid in a room of the giant's house, on top of Jack's beanstalk. The main theme of the play was the party that had been "thrown" for the shades of Queen Elizabeth, played by the former president, Mrs. H. W. Howard; Sir Walter Raleigh, played by [illegible], professional reader; Mark Anthony, played by Rosetta Knapp Hood, and "Cleopatra," played by Evelyn Woodward, formerly of the stage. [illegible], whose famous kitchen is a byword, played the part of a very up-to-date angel in evening clothes and monocle. His duty it was to keep the fair Marguerite, played by the singer, Virginia [illegible], on the straight and narrow path.

HAD TAKING WAYS

Goethe's heroine had such taking ways, helping herself to the other women's necklaces, only to be thwarted by her guardian angel who snatches the jewels and returns them, just in time to keep her from traveling into the jewel zone. The "Serpent of the Nile" gave poor Mark a bad attack of dyspepsia from the numerous vinegar and pearl cocktails she kept mixing for him, while [illegible] and Walter ran ragged throwing his cloak down across puddles of water and vinegar that careless people had spilled.

The music was very clever and got a lot of laughs. With the ringing down of the curtain guests were served refreshments and remained to dance until midnight.

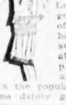
Dearest Anne:

Back from New York

comes Mae Callahan with a glorious array of fascinating new frocks! I don't know which will please you most—their price, or their style — for each is a model of Fashion's latest demand, and the price is only $15! Lustrous crepes in gorgeous shades of red, blue, tans have tightly swathed hiplines above smartly pleated skirts, and many models have the popular circular tiers. Some dainty georgette cocktail dresses are nailhead-trimmed. There are also some stunning new Powder Puff and Marble prints, with swanky cape effects—all at $15. Mae Callahan, Park Sq. Bldg. Arcade, also offers a special value in sheer chiffon hosiery—$1.50 a pair, or 3 for $4.00.



A Hat for a Dollar!

You rarely find such wonderful bargains in hats as these manufacturer's samples which Bennett's is offering for just $1.00—and you had better not waste any time getting there. Most of these hats were made to sell for $4 and $6. Every color and every style is represented in this group, which includes small felts, velvets, satins, satin with straw, ribbon with straw, and a few sample all-straw hats! There are all sizes and styles—perky, cut-away felts for Miss Sixteen, and smart-brimmed, youthfully dignified satins and combinations for Mrs. Sixty. Bennett's Wholesale Millinery, 127 Tremont St., H. S. Bennett, 6th floor.

A Perfect Appearance

demands a clean, fresh skin, unmarred by superfluous hairs. Those tiny dark lines do give such a cloudy expression and destroy all the beauty of the finest skin. Miss Molly Rapport has long been established as an electric needle expert. Her hands are sure and steady, and those who have received her treatment claim complete satisfaction, for once those unsightly hairs are removed they are gone forever. Miss Rapport guarantees her work, and her rates are very reasonable. So why not drop in to see her, at 125 Tremont St., third floor, and let her advise you about your own particular case. For appointment call Han. 7256.

Anniversary Sale!

2 for $15 2 for $25

Where, oh, where does Evelyn get those wonderful dresses she is offering in her 8th Anniversary Sale, and—how does she do it! At 2 for $25 she offers a choice of that newest of material—silk moire — in the most winning styles; filmy chiffons with detachable long sleeves, in all colors; and smart Americou and Mottled prints—the very latest. At 2 for $15 there are some crispy taffeta evening gowns, flower trimmed, swagger two-piece prints, and bright-hued silk crepes, with side drapes, flares and pleats. High-priced wool tweeds have been marked down to $5.00 at Evelyn's Dress Shop, 8 Winter St.

For a Golden Sun-Kissed Complexion

Anne, it is not necessary to bask on the saffron sands of a warm Southern beach. Just visit Filene's Toilet Goods Section and purchase your flattering sun-tan by the jar. This new waterproof skin tint of Rubenstein's, called "Sun-Tan," priced $2.50, is quite the rage, especially for evening, when the vogue of scintillating white might prove trying against a colorless skin. And how this golden-tint will reflect the beauty of your eyes! Blue eyes become sapphires, and brown eyes sparkling depths of mystery when this warm-colored Sun-Tan is applied to the face. Our South-bound Doris was terribly worried that she would look "newly-arrived" upon reaching her hotel, but I finally convinced her that an application of Sun-Tan before donning her evening gown would prevent that, and that it would also protect her skin against a vexing sunburn if patted on before swimming. So off she sailed armed with a supply of golden summer tan—in a jar—with powder to match. There is Rubenstein's Sun-Tan Powder $2.50; Max Factor's Ocre, priced $1.00; Elizabeth Arden's Spanish Rachel, $1.75; Fetiche Sun-Tan, $1.00; and Dorothy Gray Sunburn, $1.50—all obtainable at Filene's Toilet Goods Section, street floor.

Then to the Spanish Galleries, Anne!

Where they are having a wonderful markdown on winter coats for both women and misses! You mentioned the other day that you needed an extra coat—sort of substitute for your fur. Well, here it is for $49.50 at the Spanish Galleries of Chandler & Co. These remarkable coats that usually sold for $55.00 and $75.00, are priced only $49.50! And they are simply ravishing—wonderful bargains, every one. One model which specially appealed to me was a rich-looking tan, with a great fluffy, tail-trimmed, brown fox collar, and spiral cuffs. Black broadcloth coats, opossum trimmed, are unusually popular this year, and there are many stunning models of this kind, with huge shawl or Paquin collars, and deep cuffs. Long haired Manchurian Dog, Marmink, French Beaver, Caracul and Skunk adorn other lustrous broadcloths in this astonishing group, each a model of perfect tailoring and lined throughout with silk. These coats come in sizes from 14 to 46. This is surely a marvelous time to fortify yourself with an extra coat, either for immediate wear, or early spring. So don't fail to visit the Coat Department at the foot of the golden stairs, because some of these are sample coats—models of the finest workmanship and furs!

Does Your Coat Say "Stay-at-Home"?

And do you feel that you are missing—needlessly—so much in the business or social life, just because of your shabby appearance? If this is true you have no one to blame but yourself, for Scott Furriers, Inc., can easily solve your problem as they have done for thousands of New England women in all walks of life. You are not obliged to pay cash for a new fur coat, nor is it necessary to accept inconvenient or drastic terms of payments in order to enjoy the comfort and style of a beautiful fur coat. Simply take advantage of Scott's Annual Markdown Sale, and save from $50 to $200, at the same time having the privilege of their three economical payment plans. (1) You may pay cash. (2) You may open a 30-60-90-day charge account, or (3) you may join Scott's Unique Fur Club, and make small weekly or monthly payments while wearing your coat. Where but at Scott's could you have these advantages? Scott's is located at 63 Summer St., Boston, and 51 Pratt St., Hartford.

No Telltale Gray Hair

for Ruth! She had a treatment of that remarkable hair dye, Inecto Notox, at Houghton & Dutton's Beauty Parlor, and her streaked gray hair has been restored to its own natural, rich color again. And not a trace of the artificial, because Notox penetrates to the inner thread of the hair, leaving the surface glowing with its own natural sheen. Notox is not affected by shampooing or permanent waving. Houghton & Dutton operators are expert in applying this wonderful dye and invite you to call upon them for consultation, free of charge. All hair goods, creams and lotions are subject to a discount of 1-3 off this week. Houghton & Dutton's Beauty Parlor.

Do You Remember

Anne, the sale of slightly-used evening gowns at $5 that Mendelsohn's Dress Shop, 59 Temple Pl. had just a few weeks ago, and how delighted the girls were at this opportunity to buy an extra evening gown so cheaply? Well, there are a few of these frocks left, and in order to make room for some new ones they are going to be closed out at $3 each—or 2 for $5! Isn't that wonderful? An extra evening gown for $3! There are georgettes, taffetas, some beaded models, and a few tulle combinations—all in this season's styles. There are also some stunning, brand new, unused bridal gowns, for rent and for sale, as well as dancing frocks and evening wraps at Mendelsohn's.

From France!

Now comes some exquisite bath soap—soft, fragrant, and delicately scented, specially priced at 89c for a box of six large-size cakes. Now, just be patient, Anne, and I'll tell you where to buy it—at Jordan Marsh Company, street floor, annex. This is one of the greatest values in French soap they have ever offered, and the usual price is really $1.50 a box. I know you will want to lay in a box or two for future use, and possibly for an emergency bridge prize. What a feeling of utter luxury an exquisite French soap imparts to the bath! This soap comes in five alluring odors Rose, Violet, Jasmin, Carnation and Eau de Cologne.

A Markdown Sale

Florence Daniels, 7th floor, 41 Winter St., has marked her stunning wool and silk tweed dresses from $16.50 and $19.50 down to $7.95! Wait until you see them, Anne: You will surely agree with me that they are rare bargains, priced 'way below cost. The wool tweeds are exquisitely tailored in one and two-piece models with smart cluster pleats, while bright-colored pipings and buttons add a striking contrast. The silk tweeds, richly-colored, in dashing styles, have scarf collars and snug-fitting girdles that fasten with a huge buckle. What a wonderful opportunity to buy a popular silk or wool tweed at this close-out price of $7.95!

Marian's Lovely Skin

so soft and clear, is truly a proof of her fidelity to Creme de Fleurs au Bouquet, an extraordinary cleansing cream that penetrates the pores and removes all the impurities that become imbedded in the skin. This cream liquefies the instant it touches the skin, thereby eliminating the necessity of rubbing, which is apt to stretch the skin and form wrinkles. Creme de Fleurs is prepared by J. Lesquendieu from the finest French oils (it contains no animal fats) and is packed and sealed in France. It is sold exclusively by Meyer Jonasson Co. Toilet Goods Dept. for $1.75 and $3. Your skin will become glorified if you, too, use this wonderful cleansing cream.

The First Sign

of advanced spring styles appears in some darling straw-trimmed felt hats at Tuttle's, Anne. These are their "Swanky" felts, chiffon finished, trimmed with Pareline straw and the price is most appealing — only $3.50. Some are two-toned models with saucy cut-away brims, or suave-looking skulls, in red, gray, jungle, black and brown. The hat I have sketched for you is most becoming — purple aster, with orchid appliques cleverly outlined with straw. So if you are looking for the last breath in hat styles, visit Tuttle's, 604 Washington St. and 53 Summer. Their prices range from $1.98 up, and they have styles for all ages.

Devotedly yours,

Priscilla

SOCIETY EAGERLY AWAITS COMING OF OPERA, SAYS BETTY ALDEN

Reservations Already Made for Season; January 28 Is Opening Night

AND NOW THE OPERA!

When on the magic evening of January 28 the grim old pile on Huntington ave.'s upper windswept reaches has its perennial awakening all Society's peacocks will be there. A brief flash on the social horizon is the grand opera aurora, but, oh, how brilliant; how bejewelled, how exquisitely perfumed and fine linened. How keenly awaited, and how meticulously shopped for by both the tail coated and sumptuously befurred ones. And ardently attended as the apex of the social season.

SWEEP YOUR LORGNETTE THE SEMI-CIRCLE OF THE horseshoe on that magical night, you who revel in luxury's most resplendent picture. Level your glasses on the orchestra and the parterre and they'll all come within your vision—those tried and true devotees of the lyric muse, all the faithfuls who concentrate their artistic sensibilities on Grand Opera's two brief weeks and swing their prandial festivities into the orbit. The regulars who carry "opera" to exalted spectacular heights and insure the necessary financial groundwork.

MRS. ROGER WOLCOTT, JR., HOSTESS OF A BOX CENTRALLY placed, will delight the optics with a series of stunning gowns exquisitely worn, and family jewels exquisitely chosen. The high and shining horseshoe has in its entire curve no matron more delightful in evening regalia. Mrs. Hugh Bancroft with Mr. Bancroft, Mr. and Mrs. William Cox and intermittently, Miss Jane Bancroft, will handsomely adorn their usual box. Mrs. Bancroft's costumes for opera are always resplendent and she always is en grande tenue for the Chicago songsters' visit.

THE FRANK C. PAINES WILL HAVE THEIR NAMES INSCRIBED on the small gold card for a certain opera box. Enthusiastic opera goers are the Paines; enthusiastic amateur yachtsmen, and enthusiastic hunters. With sports of high order they give dash and variety to the social sauce; their last year's trek into Central Africa after big game was one of the variations they ring in. They have a box for the season, as have Mrs. Wolcott and Arthur E. Pearson. Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Baylies in the box where they always entertain with brilliance will be among the regulars who never are absent from the horseshoe.

OPERA'S PREMIERE AND SEVERAL SUCCEEDING EVENINGS will be devoid of that handsome presence, recently the Commonwealth's First Lady. Mrs. Fuller and the ex-Governor are away on the shortest, hastiest of New Year's journeys to Paris so the first Friday and Lakme will witness Mrs. Fuller's first box appearance, probably in something fresh and distinctive from the Rue de la Paix. Now that a State House office does not figure in Mr. Fuller's daily scheme he and his popular spouse will have every opportunity to cross the Atlantic frequently, which they probably will do again in April. The semi-circle of the regulars will have Frank Hopewell in evidence, that gentleman's sense for operatic gems being as keen as for fine horseflesh.

MRS. EDWIN SIBLEY WEBSTER WILL BE A GRACIOUS hostess for opening night, when Georgio Polacco lifts a baton in a scented jewel box, that is the opera house, filled with silks, satins and broadcloths way up to the topmost tiers, so high under the roof they are lost in distance. The Wagnerian familiar strains, Lohengrin, will lift sonorously as boxes, orchestra and balconies settle down for the long expected, eagerly awaited musical treat that is Boston's brief two weeks of the Chicago songsters. The Webster jewels and the Webster guests will be as brilliant as any in the scintillating sweep from the stage and back again.

GOLD CARDS ON BOX DOORS WILL BE INSCRIBED WITH such socially autocratic names as Mr. and Mrs. Harold Jefferson Coolidge, Mrs. Walter Scott Fitz, Mr. and Mrs. Donald McKay Frost, Mr. and Mrs. Quincy A. Shaw, Mrs. John Chipman Gray, Mr. and Mrs. John Gardiner Coolidge, and Mr. and Mrs. M. Graeme Haughton. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hill Thorndike have a box. Mrs. Charles Goddard Weld's family jewels and the usual galaxy of important guests will be seen in the Weld box. Mr. and Mrs. Ernest B. Dane contribute personality and a certain scintillation to the box circle.

MRS. ALVAN TUFTS FULLER

A box holder for the grand opera season. Mr. and Mrs. Fuller are doing a hasty trip to Paris, but will be back for the first Friday of the opera. It is a Boston Evening American photo.

THE BOX HELD SACRED TO DRAPER FAMILY TRADITION these many seasons is again a Draper box, with the head of that distinguished clan, Mr. B. H. Bristow Draper and Mrs. Draper its holders and brilliant entertainers. Mrs. Draper's gowns and Mrs. Draper's jewels cause full many a lorgnette to hesitate in its swing from box to box, and this season will be no exception. Of course the H. Wendell Endicotts have a box throughout the season and of course a smart and individual group will be seated therein during each evening and for the matinees. Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Winslow are box subscribers this season, their tenure of the golden cards extending through the entire two weeks.

WHERE THE BRILLIANT BIRDS OF PLUMAGE RUSTLE to orchestra places accompanied by the severity of proper black broadcloth and white linen will be found Mrs. Charles Francis Adams, Mrs. William H. Coolidge, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin S. Dodge, the N. Penrose Hallowells, Mrs. George S. Mumford, Mrs. Russell Robb, Mr. and Mrs. Paul G. Courtney, Mrs. Gerald Gray, Mrs. Reginald Gray, Mr. and Mrs. E. Sohier Welch, Mr. and Mrs. G. Herbert Windeler, Mrs. Alfred Winsor, and Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Perley Poore Moseley. Mrs. Grant Walker does the opera from the orchestra, that reflects glory for glory with the grand tier and is gorgeously arrayed and scented.

ENTERTAINMENT WREATHED AROUND THE BOSTON advent of Herbert Heyner, who sings Wednesday at the Hotel Statler, is pleasantly exhilarated by addition of another tea. Mrs. Edward F. Gray, much concerned in the festivities for Mr. Heyner, is one of the hostesses sending out cards to concert patronesses and patrons, asked to take the cheery cup immediately after the concert. The tea taking company will merely troop from the ballroom to the tea table, all under the Statler roof.

AT NO. 33 COMMONWEALTH AVE. THE ENGLISH SPEAKING Union rallies to the visiting English baritone and has asked compatriots and Bostonians to meet him tomorrow afternoon. And at the tea urns, dispensing the English favorite beverage, will be Miss Annie Endicott Nourse, Mrs. Arthur W. Wheelright, Mrs. J. Templeman Coolidge and Mrs. William Bazeley. Patronesses for the Heyner teas and concert include the Anglo-American sets and naturally Mr. and Mrs. Boylston Adams Beal, the British Consul General, Mrs. Richard Y. FitzGerald, Sir Esme Howard, et cetera.

BARGAINS IN HAND HOOKED RUGS, bright colored floor coverings done by foreign women in the South End round about 48 Rutland st. will tempt the thrifty and the keen buyers all this week at No. 6 Park st. The thrifty and the bargain hunting ones will appreciate a most substantial reduction price for the rugs that will be sold by Mrs. Henry Lyman, Mrs. Mark Howe, Miss Mary Cabot Wheelwright, Miss Lucy Cabot and Miss Ether Barrows. Mr. George C. Greener takes an hour or two from his continued through January antique sale to assist in selling the rugs.

CADETS TO DRILL AT STYLE SHOW

Final arrangements were being made today for the style show, concert, and exhibition drill, to be staged at the Brookline Town Hall tomorrow night by the Bessie Edwards Cadets of the American Legion Auxiliary.

Legionnaires and their ladies from all over Massachusetts are planning to be present.

Miss Mary T. Whittaker, department secretary and business manager of the Cadets, has obtained the collaboration of the Jordan Marsh Company in organizing the style show. Charming girl models will display the latest in street and party frocks.

Pupils of Mrs. Rooney's School of Expression will present an entertainment. The Newton Auxiliary's double quartet will sing.

The exhibition drill of the cadets will be commanded by Miss Adelaide L. Fitzgerald, department president.

Mrs. Viola Broadbent, president of the Brookline Auxiliary, will have charge of arrangements at the hall.

Today, in the real estate columns of the Classified Ads. you will find scores of opportunities for profitable investment.

TALKS ON OPERA PLANNED

The Boston season of the Chicago Civic Opera will be preceded this year by a series of lectures by prominent Boston music authorities under the auspices of the Massachusetts Department of Education in co-operation with the Music Department of the Boston Public Library.

The lectures will commence on Monday, January 14, and will be given in the Boston Public Library hall on Monday and Friday nights until February 1.

The speakers for the series will be Prof. John P. Marshall, dean of the Boston University College of Music; Prof. Walter R. Spalding of the Harvard University music department; Prof. Clarence G. Hamilton, Wellesley College music department; Stuart Mason, New England Conservatory of Music and the B. U. College of Music; Prof. Edward Burlingham Hill, Harvard University music department; and Warren Storey Smith of the New England Conservatory of Music.

Falls From Auto

Hull, Jan. 7—Donald Knight, five, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanton G. Knight of Cross st., fell out of the door of the automobile in which he was riding with his father. He sustained a severe wound on his head.

They make your arches keep their place

No foot-grumbling when you want to take a walk. No tired-out feeling because you've done a little shopping. No dreading to go out "because you've got to put those shoes on."

Coward shoes make troublesome arches keep their place. They hold them in position accurately, as no other shoes can. Only Cowards can be had in three arch elevations—high, low and medium. So only Cowards can be so comfortable.

STOCKS' TREND IS MOSTLY DOWNWARD

New York, Jan. 7 (AP)—Alternate periods of weakness and strength characterized today's stock market, but the line of least resistance was the down side.

While pools succeeded in marking up about a dozen specialties to new high records, there was rather persistent selling of many of the popular industrials, reflecting uneasiness over the credit situation. Trading was only moderate in volume.

Call money, which fell from 12 to 6 per cent last week, renewed at 7 percent, with a fairly plentiful supply of funds available at that figure. Some bankers expected the rate to work lower in view of the heavy liquidation that has taken place in the market in the last few days.

There was little in the day's business developments to affect the price movement. A small advance in refined sugar, effective tomorrow, was announced by leading refiners. Domestic copper buying was quiet with prices firm. A gain of about 100,000 tons in the unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation is expected in the monthly tonnage report on Thursday.

A break of nearly 25 points in Zonite common, which sold down to 361, as against a high of 410 last week, unsettled the market in the early afternoon.

Wright Aeronautical converted an early gain of 5 points into a loss of 7. Green Cananea Copper slumped over 8 points, Montgomery-Ward over 7 and Union Carbide, 7.

Stock Sales Equal Earning Power of People

Stock transactions in 1928 totaled 922,062,900 shares, a new record. A floor member made a wager sales would exceed 1,000,000,000 this year. If average market price for each share traded in last year was $100, total value of transactions would exceed $92,000,000,000, a figure equivalent to total earning power of the people of the United States.

PULLMAN TAX FIGHT GOES TO COURTS

In connection with formation of a stockholders' committee by certain Massachusetts stockholders of Pullman Co. to combat a state income tax on the Pullman stock dividend of 1927, which committee recently notified stockholders of their plans, it now develops that early in 1928, when it had become apparent that this state intended to levy an income tax on the Pullman stock received under reorganization plan of Pullman Co., several trustees, both corporate and individual, combined to bring a test case.

Among those joining were Boston Safe Deposit & Trust Co., Old Colony Trust Co., New England Trust Co., State Street Trust Co., First National Bank, Fiduciary Trust Co., Robert H. Gardiner, Hutchins & Wheeler, Philip Dexter, E. Sohier Welch, Dunbar, Nutter & McClennen and Ingersoll Bowditch.

First step in the test case, filing of a petition for abatement, and its disallowance, has been taken. Appeal to the Superior Court will be filed within a few days by Charles M. Rogerson, who has been retained.

Fisk Rubber Again in Red Ink Lines

Fisk Rubber Co., in common with other rubber companies, experienced a drop in earnings in the last two months of 1928 due to lower prices on original equipment. Hence, profit for the last six months of 1928 was considerably below previous estimate of $3,000,000 on basis of third quarter figures. As Fisk had a deficit of $4,983,131 for the first half of 1928 after inventory markdown and adjustments, loss for the full year 1928 will exceed $2,000,000.

Collins & Aikman Chairman Resigns

Charles B. Bennett, pioneer plush manufacturer, has resigned as director, vice-president and chairman of Collins & Aikman Corp., and has given up all activities in connection with this company. He had been president of Bennett & Aspden Co., later absorbed by Collins & Aikman Corp. His friends say there is already something developing which will require his ability and experience.

City's Affairs Like Those of a Private Corporation

By FRANK H. MELOON
Financial Editor

Mayor F. W. Hartford of Portsmouth, N. H., publisher of America's oldest newspaper, inaugurated this year for the fourth time at the city's helm, in his address on city management, brought out an interesting fact. It is one to which attention has several times been called in this column. It is that cities are in reality business corporations. Mayor Hartford also brought out the further point, familiar to readers of this column, that a city's business is usually the largest business in that city.

Although Portsmouth has boasted the world's largest button factory and some very large shoe factories, Mayor Hartford cited the point that the city's expenditures are in many respects greater than those of such concerns. A town or city, actually a business corporation though it is, differs essentially from our usual ideas of a corporation in that capital deficits are always written off by capital replacements.

Mayor Hartford Wm. C. Potter

Private corporations sometimes go bankrupt. Luckily no town or city in this section seems in imminent danger along that line at present, despite the spending orgies many have been called upon to withstand. But the buyers of municipal bonds are very apt to scrutinize them more closely in the future, with growing indebtedness and mismanagement reported in some places outside of New England.

William C. Potter, president of the Guaranty Trust Co., of New York, has been named by the Federal Reserve Board to be a member of the Federal Advisory Council from the New York district, succeeding J. S. Alexander. President Potter was graduated from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. It is interesting to recall that he went there with the sole idea of entering the mining field.

The first thing the graduate engineer did was to make for the West, and for months he, with only one companion, drove a team all over the Southwest, exploring unknown tracts here and there examining mining properties. One of his early jobs was superintendent of the Liberty Bell Mine in Colorado, 12,000 feet above sea level, where snowslides occasionally enlivened operations.

Young Potter's achievement began to attract attention, and the Guggenheims, the multi-millionaire leaders in mining and smelting, grabbed him. While still very young, he became general manager of their American Smelting and Refining Company for Mexico and the Southwest, and here he won a big reputation, not merely as an engineer, but as an executive who could grapple difficulties and transform unpromising conditions into successes.

He first struck New York 17 years ago. He came to take the presidency of the Intercontinental Rubber Co., which had extensive properties in Mexico, in Central Africa and elsewhere. Apparently, however, the banking blood in him began to assert itself, for a year later he became a vice-president of the Guaranty Trust Co. Here his mastery of engineering, and his experiences as a mining and industrial executive, proved invaluable in enabling him to pass sound judgment on propositions needing loans. As head of the loan department, Potter was a peculiarly keen watchdog of the Guaranty's funds. For his excellent work he was rewarded by promotion to the presidency.

Ben Deacon, U. S. Press Representative of the Canadian National, sent out a Christmas card that seems especially ingenious. Don't think this mention is belated, for my card has just arrived. It reads: "The Canadian National Railways System operates 122,394 freight cars over its 23,861 miles of line. They would make a train 904 miles long. We are asking the Big Boss to take these cars out of regular service December 25 and lend them to us to carry our good wishes to you."

It looks as if rumors of extra dividends on American Telephone have been stopped by the anouncement that the company has made another slash in long distance rates. This totals about $5,000,000 a year. However, these rate cuts are expected in the long run to bring in larger returns. They furnish an incentive for using the long distance service more frequently. The rate cut is the third of its kind in the past two years.

* * *

We do not know of an exception to the rule that rate cuts by other public utilities, like the electric light and power companies, always result in increased net income. Probably this rule will hold good for American Telephone. If not, the remedy is always at hand.

Trading in sixteenths of a dollar is so rare nowadays that few people outside of stock exchange circles can tell very speedily just what the fraction amounts to in cents. Sometimes on the Boston Stock Exchange or the New York Curb you will find quotations in sixteenths, but never on the "big board."

Harvey J. Scott, Boston & Maine telegrapher, telling of the early days of the Middlesex Canal, recalls that: "It was at first contemplated to carry the canal only from the waters of the Merrimack river in Chelmsford to those of the Medford river, through Billerica, Wilmington, Woburn and Medford. But subsequent acts allowed the proprietors to continue it to the Charles river, and there to open a communication with Boston by boats; extended the time for completing it to three years, from June 22, 1803 and authorized them to demand "forever" a toll of one-sixteenth of a dollar per mile for every ton of goods conveyed in boats, and for every ton of timber floated on rafts.

"As a considerable portion of the canal lay within the bounds of Woburn, much, if not the chief part of the care and responsibility in constructing it rested upon the shoulders of Col. Baldwin. With him it was a favorite enterprise, so he entered with a warm zeal upon the undertaking and much of his time and care were spent upon the work.

"The route of the canal was surveyed from Chelmsford in 1794. With the crude methods of that time, where oxen were used in removing the heavy boulder material, and the digging was done by light hand tools, and the blasting, wherever ledges were to be removed, with gunpowder, the undertaking proved laborious to an extent not experienced by Col. Goethals in the building of the Panama Canal in later years.

"The people were gratified by seeing it become navigable in 1803. The facilities it afforded for the transportation of timber and country produce to Boston and of merchandise from the city, rendered it a work of great and growing public utility, and for several years a source of increasing revenue to the proprietors. But the 'Iron Horse' at length began to supersede its usefulness, and the year the old Boston and Lowell railroad went into full operation receipts fell off one-third. When the railroad was extended to Nashua, the receipts of the canal were reduced another third. Shortly after, dividends hardly sufficed to pay for current expenses and repairs, and in 1867 a large portion of the route of the canal was filled with earth again; and over spots where rafts were once drawn, and boats were seen passing, loaded with goods and passengers, houses have been erected, and are inhabited, as on solid ground by the wayside.

"There is very little indication of this canal at the present date. Trees have grown along its banks, but within the township of Billerica is a monument of stone called the Aqueduct, and the canoeist paddling down the beautiful Shawsheen river on a summer's day may pause for a moment in the shadows of the stone arches where the eddying waters play and sparkle in the sun. Happily it is a reminder to us that men who constructed the canal at that time were progressive, and helped in the rapid growth of New England's industries."

Sinclair Dividend Is Seen as Near

Many questions are asked regarding the recent tardiness of the oil shares in participating in the upswing. The fact is that many of them were tired out after the spurt enjoyed last year. However, some stimulus is expected to be given the entire group in the near future, when the directors of Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation probably will resume dividends on their stock, says State Street rumor. The payment is expected to be at a rate of $3 annually. This action may be the forerunner of more favorable oil dividend announcements.

NORTH BOSTON HOLDERS TO GET 'RIGHTS'

Trustees of North Boston Lighting Properties will offer holders of each 10 shares of common or preferred stock of record March 8 right to subscribe to one additional share of common at par, $50. Rights will expire March 29. Full payment may be made April 17 or by quarterly instalments of $12.50 on that day, July 17, October 17, 1929, and January 17, 1930.

Giving effect to the financing, share capitalization will consist of 228,078 shares of 6 per cent preferred and 433,452 shares of common stock. Dividend rate on the common was increased Thursday from $2.25 annually to $3.

Proceeds of the financing will be used to provide funds to cover subscriptions by the trust for its proportion of additional shares of capital stock of Malden Electric Co., Malden & Melrose Gas Light Co., Haverhill Electric Co., Gloucester Electric Co. and Eastern Massachusetts Electric Co., and to retire bank loans.

Preferred stock of North Boston Lighting Properties is quoted currently around $60-$61. Common share trust certificates are quoted at $90.

RAILROADS SET NEW RECORD

New records since 1920 were made by the Class I steam railways in the first ten months this year in six out of ten selected items of freight service operating averages, it is reported by the Bureau of Statistics of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The following new records were reported: Gross trainload (excluding locomotives), 1839 tons; net trainload, 793 tons; gross ton-miles per train hour (excluding locomotives), 23,823; car miles per car day, 31.2; cars per train (including caboose), 48.2; pounds of coal per 1000 gross ton miles (including locomotives), 125.

In the following items, better records were made for the ten-month period in individual years previous to 1928: net ton miles per mile of road per day; net ton miles per car day; average carload and per cent of loaded cars to total.

In the month of October, 1928, new records for that month were made in all ten of the selected items of freight service operating averages, the commission reported.

Cuban Travel to Set New Record

Charles F. Flynn, vice-president of the Cuban National Syndicate, which last year obtained financing in the American investment market for the large Monte Carlo development in Cuba, stated that the island republic will this year have the greatest tourist traffic in its history.

Reservations have been made over railroad, steamship and more recently the new Pan-American Airways project, which run far in excess of the demand for transportation noted one year ago.

Bendix Organizes New Corporation

Bendix Corporation announces formation of the Bendix Service Corporation, an Illinois corporation. It is capitalized for $1,000,000 of $10 par value convertible preference A stock and $1,250,000 of $5 par value B stock. The majority of the B stock will be owned by the Bendix Corporation. The company has a national franchise from the Bendix Brake Company to service Bendix brakes throughout the United States.

Spalding to Vote Regarding Splitup

A. G. Spalding & Bro. called a meeting of stockholders for Feb. 5 to vote on a change in authorized common stock to 500,000 shares of no par from 60,000 shares of $100 par to provide for exchange of each share of present common into five shares of new no par common.

40,000 Get Paid Vacations; Family Spirit in Morgan's

By B. C. FORBES

CONGRATULATIONS to the McCormicks and President Alexander Legge, of the International Harvester Company, on their decision to grant all their 40,000 employes a two weeks' vacation with pay this year. The estimated cost, a million dollars, will be abundantly repaid by more and better work from the employes.

B. C. Forbes

Which big concern will be the next to adopt this humane vacation-with-pay plan?

The Harvester Corporation is extraordinarily well managed. Other managements need not hesitate to take a leaf out of its book.

Henry Ford, you are told in Detroit, is restricting rather than expanding his side-line operations and concentrating more directly upon the turning out of his cars. The Briggs Company is stated to have taken over from Ford the building of enormous quantities of bodies.

Chrysler, on the other hand, is said to be planning to get control of an important company having a very large body-building plant in Detroit.

General Motors is already very largely self-contained; meaning that it owns or controls huge plants turning out materials entering its cars. The public would be astounded were it to learn how much General Motors sells to other automobile manufacturers.

Not many "surprises" are looked for at the New York Automobile Show. Most manufacturers have already announced their new models, thus gaining more individual publicity than would have been received had all the interesting developments been held back for the annual exhibition. The trend has been toward lower prices, especially in the cheapest makes.

Does Mr. Ford's engagement of 30,000 additional workers, to keep the plant going six days a week, although each man will work only five days, suggest that this method will be widely adopted by and by to take care of America's surplus labor supply?

Meanwhile, the un-American seven-day week should be abolished by the railroads and others still perpetrating it. Where a day off regularly each week could not be arranged—as in the case of railway agents at isolated stations—a system could be provided for allowing these men a longer rest each month. Seven-day work is no longer defensible.

From M. G. Stokes, Western Springs, Ill.:

"I am a reader of your column and I read where you said not to buy stock in a company where their own employes curse them. Western Electric stock should sell good, then, for we all here at Cicero are proud of our company and there are at present about 28,000 of us."

Isn't that a tribute any management should feel proud to receive?

The world's greatest banking house, J. P. Morgan & Co., is now being run very differently from the old days. Instead of two or three middle-aged or elderly partners attempting to carry burdens which wrecked too many of them, the firm now has fourteen partners, the majority of whom are quite young men.

Thomas W. Lamont, who became the wheelhorse following the lamented death of H. P. Davison, perhaps the ablest banker New York has ever known, has latterly learned to take things easier. For several years his friends feared he would work himself into an untimely grave. He has repeatedly assured me in the last year or two that he has now become something of an idler. That, of course, is an exaggeration, because he still is very actively on the job, and always closely consulted by Mr. Morgan when matters of unusual moment arise—which is always happening, for Morgan & Co. are by far the most influential international banking firm in the world today.

The age of the three new partners admitted this year is around 30. Each is a son of a Morgan partner: Henry Sturgis Morgan, the second son of the head of the firm, who is 28; Thomas Stillwell Lamont, who is 29; Henry Pomeroy Davison, who is 30.

The Morgan partners constitute an extraordinary friendly group, with never a word heard of internal bickerings or jealousies.

HOOVER VISITS COOLIDGE TO DISCUSS TOUR

By LAWRENCE J. SULLIVAN,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Washington, Jan. 7—Herbert Hoover hung out the President-elect's shingle today at the Mayflower Hotel.

In the capital for the first time since his election two months ago, Hoover called early today on President Coolidge to discuss the details of his Latin-American good-will tour. He planned next to dive into the myriad problems preliminary to setting up his own administration in March.

Besides meeting with members of the capital's committee on inauguration arrangements, Hoover will confer with Congressional leaders today and tomorrow on the legislative situation, particularly with reference to agricultural relief—the problem with which he must deal first following his inauguration.

MAKES HISTORY

Although Hoover makes history by establishing himself in the capital before the end of his predecessor's term, it is clearly understood in congressional circles that the President-elect will scrupuously refrain from any act which might be construed as an encroachment upon President Coolidge's administration.

RETURN SIMPLE

Hoover's return yesterday from his 18,000 mile neighborhood visitation was remarkable for its simplicity. In contrast with the throng of seventy thousand which assaulted Retira station in Buenos Aires two weeks ago, the home coming at Union station here was almost exclusively a family affair.

Hoover will remain in Washington a week or ten days before resuming his travels. He will transfer his headquarters to Miami, Florida, next week, and there, after a week or ten days fishing, turn to preparation for his next sea voyage.

CARIBBEAN CRUISE

Under plans now forming, he will get underway on a short Caribbean cruise about February. Although no stops beyond Havana have been decided upon, it is likely that the itinerary may include several others, Santo Domingo, Porto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

The Navy Department has no information as to the type of craft the President-elect may desire for his next trip, but the Battleship Utah, which carried Hoover back from Uruguay, is being held in readiness for the remainder of this week awaiting word from Hoover.

Hoover sat down to his desk today in better physical condition than he has been in for several years. The long sea voyage has completely restored his depleted vitality.

Officials Attend Connolly Funeral

Present and former city and county officials were among those at the funeral of Timothy L. Connolly, former president of the old Common Council, who was burned to death last Saturday.

The funeral was held from his home in Prince st., Jamaica Plain, with a high mass of requiem sung by the Rev. Francis Scully, at St. Thomas' Church. Among those attending were: Ex-Mayor James M. Curley; his brother, former City Treasurer John J. Curley; former Fire Commissioner Theodore A. Glynn; former Schoolhouse Commissioner Thomas Glynn; District Attorney William J. Foley; Assistant District Attorney William McDonnell; Thomas Phelan and Attorney Charles Quirk.

Sallies' Council . . . . . Ready to Convene

Sunbury-on-Thames, Eng., Jan. 7 (INS)—Virtually all the members of the Salvation Army high council had arrived here today for the meeting which will determine the future leadership of this organization.

The first session will open tomorrow morning in the famous Salvation Army Training College. Mrs. Bramwell Booth, wife of Gen. Booth, is here, and Commander Evangeline Booth, head of the American branch of the Salvation Army, has been active since her arrival in London.

New A B C's Cause Stir Among Turks

Constantinople, Jan. 7 (AP)—Fear of Moslems that their sacred religion was being undermined by the introduction of the Latin alphabet and other measures was believed today to have resulted in plots which were suppressed by the government at Sivas and Brousha.

The new alphabet became effective on New Year's day, when street criers beat drums in every village throughout Turkey, calling on males and females between 16 and 40 years old to enroll in the new national schools.

Child "Torturer" Gets Suspended Sentence

Antonio Saraci, 45, of Sheate st., North End, was today given a suspended sentence of two months in jail on a technical charge to assault and battery upon his two children, Frances, 10, and Peter, 12.

Child welfare association agents testified that Saraci tortured the girl and boy with pincers, iron clamps, and other instruments.

Saraci came to today's hearing from the Boston Psychopathic hospital, where, after a 10-day period of observation, he was adjudged sane.

"You have inflicted extreme penalties upon your daughter and your son for minor acts of misbehavior," Judge Thomas Dowd told the defendant. "If you are ever before me again on any such charge, you will get a maximum sentence to jail."

Saraci promised to treat the children kindly in the future.

WED BY VATICAN MONSIGNOR

Whitman, Jan. 7—The Rt. Rev. Mgr. Francis J. Spellman, home on vacation leave from his duties at the Vatican at Rome, officiated at the Church of the Holy Ghost here today at the marriage of his sister, Miss Helene K. Spellman, and Atty. George F. Garrity, Jr., of Abington.

More than 20 priests, including high officials of the Boston diocese, were present.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Spellman of Whitman. Garrity is town counsel at Abington.

So. Boston Youth, 11, 'Out-Mums' Coolidge

Pres. Coolidge, he of few words, has discovered a young man equally as mum it was revealed today when 11-year-old Francis Logan, of South Boston, returned after a "stirring talk" with the chief executive at Washington.

Young Logan visited the capitol last week with his uncle and aunt, Gen. and Mrs. Edward Logan, and accompanied them to luncheon at the White House, where he sat beside the President.

"What did you talk about?" he was asked.

"I didn't talk at all except when he asked me a question. I just listened to them talk, and when he spoke to me I said 'Yes, Mr. President.' That's all I said."

OPPOSES PROFITS

To paraphrase a famous [illegible] the State's slogan [illegible] "Millions for protection, but not [illegible]

[illegible]

The compulsory insurance law is not only a good law because it provides compensation for those injured in accidents and for the families of persons killed, but it is a good safety measure. It has kept down the number of accidents in this State, while in other states, which are without it, the number has increased. There has been a tremendous increase in Connecticut, for instance.

NICHOLS IN INAUGURAL ASKS FOR NEW TRAFFIC CONTROL

[illegible]

This drastic proposal would not only strip the street commission of its powers in relation to traffic but also take from the police department control over devices, leaving the latter nothing but the enforcement of the rules and regulations.

[illegible] Mayor's [illegible] committee [illegible] The new commission would [illegible] the distribution of duties among [illegible] divisions.

CHANGE NECESSARY

"In 1908 by a legislative act the authority to regulate street traffic was transferred from the city legislative body to the Board of Street Commissioners. During the past 20 years [illegible] the traffic problem has become so complex and acute that I feel it is necessary to recommend a change in the administration of this problem.

[illegible]

[illegible] and last year it dropped to $25.80 [illegible]

[illegible] have been [illegible] substantial [illegible] surplus [illegible] considerably in excess of the $1,750,000 [illegible] year ago, which I hope will be effective for a reduction in the tax rate of the new year."

Mayor Nichols again emphasized his determination to make the Boston Airport the best in the country. He also stressed what he called the prime necessity of building the new courthouse now.

REORGANIZE FI

He demanded extensions of the [illegible] reorganization of the [illegible] also [illegible] with the terms [illegible]

[illegible]

"A survey [illegible] a period of ten years on the [illegible] of new streets in residential districts shows [illegible] from 1919 to 1928, inclusive, [illegible] new streets have been constructed in residential districts [illegible]

[illegible]

An outstanding feature of the street improvement program during the past three years is to be found in River st. and in Ashland and Oakland sts. in the Hyde Park, West Roxbury and Mattapan districts, approximating in cost nearly $1,000,000.

[illegible]

They included among many things [illegible] higher standard of pay generally for city employees, more [illegible] police protection through [illegible] larger police force, more fire protection through additional fire fighting apparatus, a reorganization of the health service of the city, more comprehensive hospitalization, a more effective system for the care, maintenance and construction of streets and the building of new schoolhouses.

[illegible]

TAX RATE DROP

[illegible] Hall st., and [illegible] Nassau [illegible]

[illegible]

"[illegible] I asked the Legislature for authority to widen Port [illegible] and [illegible] Merrimac sts. and approval for the utilization of the elevated structure along Atlantic ave. as an overhead thoroughfare. I am convinced that these are important measures to be taken up with all possible despatch and shall again petition the Legislature for the right to proceed with [illegible] traffic thoroughfares which may well be deemed to be of immediate importance.

CHARLES RIVER BASIN

"I [illegible] that the city of Boston [illegible] in the fullest possible way with the plans for the [illegible] Special [illegible] Commission of the [illegible] and the Metropolitan [illegible]

"It has been my fixed policy to keep the school system of Boston apace with modern developments. Boston has always been in the lead in educational matters, and it should be our pride to maintain that lead.

"[illegible] railroad terminal [illegible] known [illegible] Boston Garden [illegible] during the year at the [illegible] Boston & Maine [illegible] was made possible [illegible] public [illegible] commercial [illegible] progress.

It has been the [illegible] of the assessing department to recognize the changing conditions in the older [illegible] sections of the city and to [illegible]

HUB'S SKYLINE

"A new sky line of lofty buildings in pyramidal form is the promise contained in Chapter 1[illegible], acts of 1928. [illegible] of the policy 'Build Boston' which I emphatically advocate.

[illegible]

[illegible] for many years in use and in such condition that great annual expense must be incurred for [illegible]

[illegible] the site of the old Revere house, and a third under similar authorization is to be erected this year on Chestnut Hill ave. in Brighton.

"A substantial reduction in fire losses during the year presents strong reasons for a reduction in fire rates now under examination by a special committee acting under an appropriation provided by the city council.

AIRPORT IMPROVEMENTS

"The Boston airport has been taken over by the city from the commonwealth.

"A standard form of lease has been adopted on a rental basis of [illegible]

[illegible]

"The Boston Airport Corporation, Colonial Company, the Skyways, Inc., will start building hangars immediately. The Colonial company wish to institute passenger service between Boston and New York at the earliest opportunity.

[illegible] waiting room [illegible]

The [illegible] of Metropolitan Boston are [illegible] what they should be.

"I shall urge upon the Legislature this year the construction of the Huntington ave. subway, the extension to Day sq. in East Boston, the extension of the Boylston st. subway to Harvard ave., with the necessary extension on Beacon st. at Governor sq., and the extension of the Elevated from Forest Hills out Hyde Park ave. to a station near Mt. Hope to care for the residents of Hyde Park, and thence across the main line of the New Haven railroad and Washington st. to the West Roxbury branch, and thence along the West Roxbury branch through Roslindale and West Roxbury to Spring st.

Suggests Business Board to Advise Port of Boston

"The port of Boston ought to have the advice of a business board clothed with public authority. I believe that an energetic and ever-watchful local authority would be in a better position to combat unfairness and to meet all future attempts to ruin our port. . . . I believe that some sort of local port authority should be established at once, and I intend seeking legislation to this end."
From Mayor Nichols' address.

COLDS MAY DEVELOP INTO FLU

Coughs from Flu May Weaken Your System and Lead to Serious Trouble

You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to [illegible] is absorbed into the [illegible] the seat of the trouble [illegible] the growth of the germs. [illegible] is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion may help you avoid flu, but is not sold as a flu remedy. If you have fever, or think you may have the flu, see your doctor immediately. (adv.)

375,000 Jars Vicks Now Produced Every 24 Hours

That the public has not forgotten the lesson of 1918 is indicated by its prompt response to the warning of health authorities to combat the flu by keeping free from colds.

The demand for Vicks VapoRub [illegible] vaporizing salve which proved so valuable during the 1918 epidemic, has already shattered by a wide margin all previous records.

Although the capacity of the Vicks laboratories has been tripled since 1918, they are once more operating night shifts. The present output is more than 375,000 jars every 24 hours.

Mild though it is in comparison with 1918, this year's epidemic has already affected more than a million persons and it is apparently still increasing.

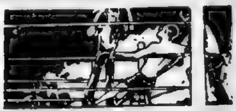
SPEED ACCURACY INTEREST [illegible] HAPPENS

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

MONDAY, JANUARY 7, 1929



Sport Editorial

The death of Tex Rickard is one of the most severe losses ever suffered by the sporting world. In the latter years of his life Rickard directed all of the athletic activities of the Madison Square Garden Corporation, which included boxing, bike racing, hockey, track meets, horse shows and basketball.

It is as a boxing promoter that Rickard's memory will live down through the ages. He was unknown in the sport world in 1906 when he offered Battling Nelson and Joe Gans a $30,000 purse for a championship bout at Goldfield, Nevada.

Rickard reached his peak as a promoter when he staged the Dempsey-Tunney bout at Chicago a year ago last September. This match drew $2,600,00 and Tunney received almost a million dollars for his services.

Rickard possessed the courage of his convictions. He was not afraid of big things. He would give star boxers huge guarantees as he knew the American public would support a major attraction.

Rickard had vision as well as courage. He was also honest and had the confidence of the men with whom he did business. He always paid off according to his contracts, even when he took a $300,000 loss, as was the case at the Tunney-Heeney bout last summer.

Rickard did not have any time for a small proposition. Details and men who were afraid to take a chance irritated him.

Tex had his heart and mind on million-dollar propositions. This was not because he cared for money himself. He liked to do big things.

The sport world will miss Rickard's genius and ability to stage athletic events on a tremendous scale. His example should be an inspiration to others. In this way the memory of Tex Rickard will always be kept fresh. JACK CONWAY

"'I GOT the $10,000 but never went back to Texas.

"'I got my greatest thrill out of promoting the Jeffries-Johnson bout at Reno on July 4, 1910. They considered me daffy when I offered a purse of $101,000 for that match. The show drew $270,775 and we all made money on the venture.

"'Back in 1906 they said I was crazy when I hung up a purse of $30,000 for Gans and Nelson at Goldfield. The miners chipped in and enabled me to post the guarantee with a Goldfield bank. That show drew $69,715 and made the world talk about Goldfield.

"'I don't deny that I love Jack Dempsey. It was the Tiger who made me the world's leading promoter. In all, he has drawn close to $9,000,000 in shows he has appeared in under my management.

"I TALKED with Rickard for the last time a week ago last Wednesday. The great promoter had [illegible] Miami for February 27 and was preparing to leave New Y[illegible]

[illegible] he did so, he put in a long distance call to [illegible] New England felt in regard to his big match at M[illegible]

"'I HOPE all the sport writers in New England will make the trip to Miami for the bout,' he said. 'I'm taking Mrs. Rickard and Baby Maxine to Miami. Tell Jack Sharkey and Johnny Buckley to bring their children along with them when they come South. Miami is a great place for the youngsters. The sunshine and fresh air will give them new health.

"'I shall look forward to seeing you in Miami, Mr. Boston, along with the rest of the boys.'

"TEX said 'good by' cheerfully for was he not on the way to Miami with his [illegible] Maxine is able to romp around on the white sands of Miami [illegible] conscious of the fact that a greater power [illegible] called her daddy.

"I hope that up there Tex may be permitted to play for after his years of honest effort in sport he is deserving of ease and complete happiness.

"I SHALL miss listening to Rickard's stories of the Yukon, of watching him twirl his cane and bite nervously upon a cigar. I shall also miss the fiery glint in his eyes and the smile that played around his lips as he closed a million dollar match."

PROOF THAT DOCTOR IS WRONG

MILDRED WILEY

ETHEL CATHERWOOD

Dr Frederick Rand Rogers, New York State director of health and physical education, declares that competition destroys beauty and women who engage in competitive sport lose all that is beautiful. Here are two young ladies who have engaged in sport competition for some little time but, if our eyesight hasn't failed us, haven't lost their beauty yet. Miss Catherwood, who hails from Canada, won the women's high jump championship of the world at the Olympic games in Amsterdam last summer and has been kept busy escaping movie magnates ever since. Miss Wiley is a Boston girl and America's best high jumper. The two are engaged to meet in a title match in New York next month. It will certainly be a beautiful match to watch.

NAME RICKARD'S SUCCESSOR TODAY

New York, Jan. 7 (INS)—First Vice President William F. Carey and the directors of the Madison Sq. Garden corporation were scheduled to meet late today to name a successor to Tex Rickard.

The meeting also will consider the Stribling-Sharkey fight in Miami late next month. It is expected that Jack Dempsey will be selected to take Rickard's place as the promoter.

Moscowitz Favored

New York, Jan. 7—Lou Moscowitz, Bronx featherweight battler has been made a 6 to 5 favorite to defeat tough Tony Pellegrino in their feature 10-round argument tomorrow night.

Bruins Captain May Be Out for Weeks

The Bruins are concerned with the physical condition of Capt. Lionel Hitchman. Out for three weeks because of an injury, he was in again in the game at Montreal Thursday night, and his injury was aggravated further in the first period of the Pittsburgh game.

He probably will be out of the game tomorrow night, and if the injury happens to be a chipped bone as the case may be, he will be out for a month or more.

But Clapper will be on defense with Eddie Shore against Toronto, and MacKay will play right wing in the second line with Cooney Weiland and Eric Pettinger. Aside from a slightly injured wrist, and a charley horse that bother Eddie, the team is fit.

Julian Wera Goes to New Jersey Club

New York, Jan. 7 (AP)—Julian Wera, third baseman, was released today by the New York Yankees on option to the Jersey City club of the International League. Wera was with Hollywood of the Pacific Coast League last year after a spring trial with the Yankees.

The Rise of Lotta Crabtree to Fame on the Stage

Variety too had sharply keyed up [illegible] theater, with its shattering gayety; many actors had moved [illegible] from the legitimate to the variety stage. But the life of the theater in California had been [illegible] and in [illegible] the interest must remain an [illegible] one for full theatrical ex[illegible]

Never a great actress, but with the scale and superabundant power that had always been manifest there, Adah [illegible] remained in the larger tra[illegible] the California stage. Along with the flock of Mazeppas that spread over the country, she perhaps unleashed a larger [illegible]

Confident of Lotta's talent, Mrs [illegible] that this had only to be displayed in New York and a new career would promptly begin.

Soon after they landed in the early summer of 1864, she had engaged [illegible] a small [illegible] which enjoyed only a reflection of the favor that came to [illegible] Garden, and in [illegible] as lessee and proprietor. Crabtree had a fine upstanding figure and a [illegible] Mrs Crabtree was still faintly fond of him, but it may be doubted whether he added wisdom or power to the undertaking.

With Lotta billed as the California favorite, [illegible] with an obscure company, they offered a variety program, with dances, banjo solos, songs and farces; among others Lotta gave as an afterpiece her ex[illegible] the old [illegible]

This was [illegible] style [illegible] ly not intended for a first-class audience, concert halls being her [illegible]

Over the same circuit they went again and again, through Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Louisville, Buffalo, with occasional flying visits to [illegible]

[illegible] in the hours before a performance she was as reluctant as ever to appear.

Upon her mother, as in earlier days in the mountains, fell the burden of keeping her in good spirits, making difficult arrangements, even of playing many times Mrs. Crabtree took minor parts. She was [illegible] learning lines, and could slip into almost any vacant place [illegible] parts.

And from time to time, in the handsomer, less exacting roles, Crabtree walked on, and was to do so for some years as he continued to travel with his wife and daughter. Apparently his presence was [illegible] as it had not been in the mountains of California. Wearing a topper and a long black cloak, [illegible] a man, with his invincible air of [illegible]

Lotta's stock of plays increased, and included moderately ambitious efforts like the boyish operetta, "The Pet of the Petticoats," and the [illegible]

As Lotta played it, "The Seven Sisters" was nothing less than a [illegible] minstrel show verging upon melodrama by sudden shifts of startling scenery and action.

She swaggered and romped through all her parts with a lavish dispersal of songs, dances, banjo-playing, and even [illegible] of the hand-organ. There was novelty in these [illegible] and [illegible] engagements in which she headed the better local companies were soon assured her.

Dr. L. E. Bisch's Daily Article on Health

By LOUIS E. BISCH, M. D., Ph. D.
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

ALL of us are a wee bit timid now and again. In fact, a little fear makes for caution and is a powerful adjunct of the instinct of self-preservation.

This normal, average amount of fear, however, such as fear of taking chances while swimming, or of speculating in stocks, is something quite different from the abnormal fear I want to tell you about today.

For instance, there is claustrophobia. This is a marked fear of closed, small places. People who suffer from such fears cannot [illegible] windows of the room open.

There is an opposite to claustrophobia, also a tormenting fear, and it is called agoraphobia. Persons with this symptom shun all open spaces, like a field, the street, or large assembly halls.

Then there is acrophobia, fear of high places, also mysophobia, fear of dirt, and many other varieties of unusual fears.

Some people become afraid of certain numbers, thirteen being a common one, also seven, six or nine. I do not mean that they merely are superstitious about the number; they actually have to [illegible] when [illegible] or [illegible] they come into contact with the number, as 26, 39, etc., or 31, 62, etc. He would also watch the clock for 13 minutes to the hour and 13 minutes after the hour, and at these times he experienced a peculiar dread that something was going to happen to him, exactly what he did not know. Whenever he ascended a flight of stairs he would count the steps, and if there were 13 he would go into a panic. On the 13th day of each month he remained in bed all day, fearful of going to work, even afraid to dress. It goes without saying that the phobia of the number 13 rendered his life a misery.

Women sometimes have abnormal fears of snakes, worms or mice. A little of it is natural enough. But [illegible] words, of a functional nerve disease.

The fundamental cause for these conditions is to be found in some malfunctioning of the unconscious mind, in the deeper layers of our thinking, which we scarcely realize exist.

But there are psychological methods available through which unconscious mental processes may be explored, and in this way all kinds of phobias may be improved or made to disappear entirely.

Persons with phobias should not, however, worry lest they some day go insane. Insanity and neurotic disorders are entirely different conditions.

[illegible] should be arranged, according to the values of the units, it would mean that the usher would walk first, then the bridesmaid would walk alone next, then the maid of honor, walking alone, and last the bride and [illegible] suggest that the bride and groom plan to have at least two ushers, so that they may walk together first in the processional and last in the recessional. Also, if the bride wishes, her maid of honor and bridesmaid may walk together, or the bride might decide to have two bridesmaids and have them walk together after the two ushers. It is artistic to have couples—not a man and a woman together, but two ushers together and two bridesmaids together—in a wedding processional.

A MAN wrote and asked me why some women always "break the rhythm." What he meant by breaking the rhythm was the want of understanding which can be shown by either sex which causes a sudden switch off from pleasurable emotion into the commonplace. I personally think that men do it quite as often as women, but for the sake of argument, let us consider what it produces in a man when the girl of his heart is guilty of this stupidity.

George may be worked up to a romantic exhilaration which [illegible] is causing him [illegible] triumph and joy. He uses some phrase which indicates that his spirit is soaring, and she replies with an obvious banality—she has "broken the rhythm"—his flow of emotion automatically ceases, and both are conscious of a sudden chill. Clara knows that George is no longer feeling so passionately appreciative of her—but she is too thick-skinned to divine why, and would be too vain to admit the cooling off was her own fault even if the fact were pointed out to her.

Simply thousands of love affairs, and indeed, wedded unions, go on the rocks for no other reason than that one or the other of the pair has not comprehension enough not to "break the rhythm." A man or woman who loves must acquire tact if he or she has it not—for emotion is as delicate and perishable as the down on a butterfly's wing—and one jarring sentence can flatten it and a continuance of them will brush it off altogether.

So if you really love, either of you George and Clara, try to comprehend your loved one, and show sympathy and understanding. And even if some of his or her flights into sentiment are beyond you, keep silent, and let him or her feel your sympathy. For if you are stupid and say the wrong thing, you will have broken a rhythm which cannot be mended.

THE BAER FACTS

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

WE inhaled the fragrant statistics of the California-Georgia Tech football game over the radio.

And we were thrilled by the accurate descriptions of the intercollegiate Jaspers as they pulled and tugged on the field of fractured glory.

But, most of all, we were pulverized by the announcer's verbal bookkeeping of Roy Riegels' non-negotiable touchdown.

From what we fail to understand about the proceedings, Roy picked up a gentle fumble and galloped the wrong way.

As the announcer unrolled the ledger of Roy's reversed pilgrimage we did not know whether our ears deceived us or whether our adenoids were defective.

Roy is not to blame entirely, for they tell us his teammates gave him interference as he dashed rapidly on his retrograde parade.

Furthermore, no football player is responsible for what he does after he leaves the huddle

As he picked up the young fumble, he was heard to remark, "I do not know where the West begins. But I can show you where the East forgets to stop."

Then he proceeded to become the valedictorian of the 1929 graduating class of backward students

Just when Roy might have hung up a record by scoring a touchdown for the visitors he was tackled on the one yard line by a jealous teammate.

The tackler's name was Lom, another California player, who said:

"When Roy tried to score a touchdown for Georgia he was carrying both the ball and California hospitality too far."

On the next play, Lom was tossed for a safety and Georgia Tech won the game. But Riegels proved his gameness by coming back in the second half and blocking a kick.

Fortunately, after blocking the kick, he did not get hold of the ball

After the game, the California coach called his men together in a post-graduate huddle and remarked:

"After this, we will play all our games on a one-way street."

Roy went Democratic too late to affect the November election results We feel sorry for him, but it is the coach's own fault for not having a couple of traffic cops on the sidelines.

Deaf mutes have filed a formal protest with the Motion Picture Producers' Association against talking pictures, declaring the new form has ruined screen entertainment.

They're not so dumb, after all.

Why is it that the mutes are the only ones who speak up with the courage of their convictions?

Early to bed, where laye reading from Mister Oldy's Harleian Miscellany (being tracts from the second Earl of Oxford's library) until I did see the sun rise; liked best "Ode to Vanitie of Wanton Writings" in which Nick Greene describeth Chaucer—

His stature was not very tall;
Lean he was; h's legs were small;
Hos'd within a sock of red;
A button's bonnet on his head;
From under which did hang, I weene,
Silver haires, both bright and sheene. . .
Of water camlet did he wearer
A whittle by his belt he beare.
His shoes were corned broad afore;
His inkhorn at his side he wore. . . .

Pepping up the color scheme, a long scarf of solid color is worn with a swimming suit of white. The shorts of this white suit display a crease like a man's trousers. The gaily striped belt is another masculine touch.

Whether it's modesty or not is still to be decided. Anyway sweaters now insist on tucking themselves under the skirts of the tweed ensembles which they accompany. The tuck-in vogue has also created a blouse which can be worn in or outside a skirt.

ASPIRIN

For sore throat, there's a swift and sure way to soothe away the inflammation. Every singer knows the secret! Dissolve Bayer Aspirin tablets in pure water, and gargle. Nothing in the whole realm of medicine is more helpful in cases of sore throat. And you probably know how Aspirin dispels a headache; breaks up colds, relieves rheumatic pain, neuralgia, neuritis, lumbago! Just make certain to get genuine Bayer Aspirin; it has Bayer on the box, and on each tablet. All druggists, with proven directions.

For TONSILITIS and SORE THROAT

BARBARA KENT IN LLOYD'S NEWEST

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

Copyright, 1929, Universal Service

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 6 — Harold Lloyd has picked Barbara Kent for his leading lady. Harold only makes a picture every 18 months and when he decides to start a film he has all the anxious-to-be-movie-stars sending in their pictures and asking for the job. That's because heretofore Harold has always chosen an unknown to play opposite him.

In selecting Barbara Kent he varies the usual order of things, for Barbara is a Universal contract player and was loaned to the Lloyd company by Carl Laemmle, Jr. She is also a baby Wampas star and a young woman who has played leading roles the past year.

With Mal St. Clair as director and Barbara Kent as leading woman it looks as if Harold is bowing to the new regime. He wants someone with experience so if the talkies are still on the crest of the wave when he finishes his comedy he won't have to break in two unknowns for the talkie sequences.

The Rooneys are coming, hooray, hooray! they land in Hollywood this morning, Pat and Marion and their collegiate son, Patsy. All of them are well known on the vaudeville stage. When the chief rolls in, Ben Holmes, their director, accompanied by some of the Universal folk, will meet the Rooneys and extend to them an official welcome. Ben Holmes' name, while new to the screen, is well known on the stage, where he was a Shubert stage director and actor. He has been signed by Universal to make a series of six two-reel talking comedies with the Rooneys. If the Rooneys are anywhere near as popular in films as they were in vaudeville, they ought to be a little bit better than successful.

Nothing is immune from sound these days, that is, anything that can produce noise. The Stanford and University of Southern California games have all been filmed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer with sound accompaniment. That ought to be enough to cheer the hearts of these loyal college youngsters. All of these college rah-rahs will be incorporated in a picture to be called "College Days," which Sam Woods will direct for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Can't you see how Stanford and U. of S. C. will patronize this talkie?

Looking as if New York agreed with her, June Collyer returned home just in time to act as bridesmaid at the wedding of her chum, Lina Basquette, and Peverell Marley. It wasn't the wedding alone that shortened June's stay in New York for there was work to be done. Oh yes, there is always work to be done when a girl is under contract. Winfield Sheehan recently signed Miss Collyer on a new contract and her first picture under the new arrangement with "The Grouch Bag," with Irving Cummings directing. It's to be a talkie and if Irving puts the same touches into it that he did in "In Old Arizona" we would just like to say in passing that June is a very lucky girl.

Percy Haswell who in her day was one of the best known stage actresses has heard the call of the talkies. Percy Haswell, who in private life is Mrs. George Fawcett and who the last few years has let George do the work, is to play a part in "Innocents of Paris," and here is an interesting angle. She is going to use the name of Mrs. George Fawcett on the screen for the first time in her career. I'll wager George is pretty proud for although he and Mrs. Fawcett have been married for many, many years, he still considers her his favorite actress. Margaret Livingston and John Miljan are likewise members of the cast.

What goes into Grauman's Chinese Theater is always a matter of interest in Hollywood for Sid Grauman's first nights have become famous the world over. The movie stars are as busy selecting their costumes as any society leaders who have a Metropolitan Opera Premiere on their minds. I hear tell that "Melody of Love," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's prize musical comedy, will move into Grauman's. If that picture is half as good as everybody says, it ought to be a wow. Sid himself figures it will last a year, others say it's the greatest advancement in sound pictures yet made.

Colleen Moore Film at Twin Houses

Colleen Moore plays the stellar role in "Synthetic Sin," now at the Modern and Beacon. She portrays an unsophisticated young Southern girl who becomes involved in adventures of the most humorous and exciting nature while in search of "experience" that will equip her for a career as an actress.

Colleen Moore

Seldom has Mss Mooreyedia Miss Moore played a part providing greater opportunity for her talents as a comedienne, for she appears in a variety of scenes ranging from blackface burlesque to hilarious comedy melodrama. Antonio Moreno plays the masculine lead, portraying a playwright faced with the task of extricating Miss Moore from the tangles into which her ambitions lead her.

Montagu Love contributes another fine piece of acting as "Brandy Mullane." Others in the cast are Gertrude Astor, Edythe Chapman and Kathryn McGuire. The picture is synchronized with sound effects and a musical score arranged by Nathaniel Shilkret.

"The Sideshow," another film, is a melodrama of circus life. In plot and treatment it is well presented. Ralph Graves and Marie Prevost head the cast.

THE ETERNAL 'PAPERS'

THE PLOT THICKENS
In the new all-talker, "Interference," which comes next week to the Olympia and Fenway, Doris Kenyon and Clive Brook discover that rubber checks are no good for a rainy day.

MORAN-O'BRIEN GOOD TEAM IN 'BLINDFOLD'

Lois Moran and George O'Brien make a good team in "Blindfold," new underworld thriller at the Scollay. Although the story was a good yarn when Charles Francis Coe wrote it, it comes out on the screen looking familiar enough. The film cannot, therefore, be classed as entirely extraordinary, but one quality it does possess—the plot is plausible and the intelligent direction of Charles Klein makes it believeable, which is more than can be said for so many other things of this stripe.

Lois Moran

As a team, Moran and O'Brien are a good combination, although Lois seems to have lost some of her good looks and some of her earlier sweet unsophistication.

George is the young cop, and when the gal's brother is shot by the gang he awaits to "get" them, Lois falls into the clutches of the crooks, but the valiant policeman flies to the rescue before any damage is done.

The thrills and action are there, with some good surprise twists to keep the suspense mounting.

Others in the cast are Don Terry, Maria Alba and Earl Foxe.

The stage show is headed by Frank (Shanty) Hogan and Andy Cohen, star baseball players on the New York Giants, who give fifteen swift minutes of patter and song. Another bright act, and quite pretty too, is that of Elsie and Herman who present "Artistic Postures" in a living water fountain.

Vincent to Speak in Medical Library

President George E. Vincent of the Rockefeller Foundation is to be the guest speaker at a dinner at the Boston Medical Library and the Massachusetts Medical Society at Holmes Hall, in the Medical Library, 8, The Fenway, tonight.

The guest will be welcomed by Dr. John W. Bartol, president of the Boston Medical Library and Dr. John M. Birnie of Springfield, president of the Massachusets Medical Society. Invitations have been accepted by 75 business, professional and educational leaders of the State.

Mr. Vincent's subject will be "Social Imagination."

Joe Cook Returns to Show Tonight

Joe Cook, star of "Rain or Shine," will resume his performances tonight at the Shubert Theater, according to his managers, who announced that the comedian has completely recovered from his illness which necessitated closing the show. The show will remain in Boston for two weeks longer, and the doctors assured him that he is able to take his part in the performance.

PRAGUE CHORUS IN U. S. DEBUT AT SYMPHONY

By MOSES SMITH

One of the major events of the musical season, indeed of many musical seasons, was the American debut of the Prague Teachers' chorus at Symphony Hall. Made up of musical amateurs, each one of whom is a teacher in some school of Prague, Czecho-Slovakia, this choir has built up a remarkable reputation in 20 years, under the leadership of Metod Dolezil.

Metod Dolezil

This concert made the reputation quite understandable. Since comparisons are inevitable, let me compare this men's chorus with our own very fine Harvard Glee Club. The Glee Club sings as a rule with the most perfect attacks, flawless phrasing and clear enunciation. The visitors could not better these things. But they begun where our students left off.

For one thing, here were mature male voices, so that 50 of them gave the resonance of thrice that number. The quality of these voices was beautiful, notably among the tenors who are so sadly lacking in a youthful organization. Most impressive of all, however, was the superb dramatic fire of the visitors, their singular characterizing skill which gave meaning to a song, the text of which the listener could not understand.

Much of the praise doubtless should fall on the shoulders of the great conductor, Dolezil; but probably most of it is due to the devotion of the men themselves, who have brought themselves to a level of vocal technical perfection, where they might almost be compared with the Vatican singers—the standard of such things. As for tonal drama from a chorus, we can think of nothing previous in our experience to match it.

The music of the program was largely of a kind to bring out this fire—Janacek's thrilling "70,000," a song of despair; Kunc's "Ostrava," an epic of the coal mines — exceedingly difficult to render, and new to our ears. There were religious songs, patriotic songs, and very graciously, at the end, "The Star Spangled Banner," in recognizable English.

Other concerts of the week-end included Reinald Werrenrath, baritone, singing before a small but very enthusiastic audience at Symphony Hall; Nina Koshetz, soprano, substituting on short notice for Povla Frijsh at the Statler, with Russian, French and Spanish songs of unhackneyed character; Myra Hess, English pianist, at Jordan Hall, and the People's Symphony Orchestra at the Statler.

SINGER-WRITER IN CONCERT

An expose of the Italian opera system, by which most American music students are forced to buy their operatic way in Italy, paying rapacious managers dearly, and often suffering soul-crushing disappointments and defeat, is made by Dorothy Speare, novelist and opera star, in a dramatic story, "Mouth of the Wolf," appearing in a recent number of the Cosmopolitan Magazine. Miss Speare, who will sing here at Symphony hall on Wednesday evening, Jan. 9, is a most versatile young woman.

Dorothy Speare

Samuel Pepys Is an Ardent Theater Fan

For a really inveterate theatergoer, meet Mr. Samuel Pepys, hero of James B. Fagan's comedy, "And So To Bed," now at the Plymouth. Mr. Fagan declares Pepys was the champion theatergoer of all time.

Nowadays, what with the complex nature of modern life, only the most ardent patrons of the drama ever get round to seeing a play more than once. But Pepys, Mr. Fagan points out, repeated again and again.

But Pepys did not always find his first judgment of a play confirmed on subsequent visits, and by way of proof Mr. Fagan digs up his references to "The Villain," a play by Thomas Porter. After the first viewing, he wrote: "I never was less pleased with a play in my life." After the second: "Better pleased with the play than I was at first, understanding the design better than I did." And after a third inspection: "The more I see it, the more I am offended at my first undervaluing the play, it being very good and pleasant, and yet a true and allowable tragedy."

OLDSMOBILE'S PRICE CUT

A price reduction on all models of Oldsmobile automobiles was announced today by the Oldsmobile company's Boston agents. The cut ranges from $50 to $70. It brings the selling figure of the standard two-door sedan to $875 F. O. B. Lansing, Mich.

Increased business with resulting manufacturing economy made the new prices possible, according to the company's official spokesman, D. S. Eddins, vice-president and general sales manager.

"This favorable position is the result of the approval given Oldsmobile by the motoring public, and therefore, it is but right that any savings resulting should be passed on to the public. We are doing this in two ways, first by reducing prices, and secondly by adding refinements to the 1929 car."

WLOE—John Mahoney of Somerville is still snickering over this one:

"Floorwalker, I've lost my wife."

"I'm sorry. You'll find the mourning goods department on the third floor."

WBET—Maybe you don't think this is funny, but Dorothy MacBeth of Newtonville did and does.

Arthur Martel—"Before playing the next selection, I'll give you the following Mexican weather report. Chile tonight and hot tamale."

Send in to the Boston Evening American Radio Department the best jokes and amusing incidents which you hear over the radio. For every contribution printed, a prize of One Dollar will be sent to the writer.

CULTURE JOINS COMMERCE IN AIR WAVES

By FRED TOYE
Radio Editor

TUNES from the family chatterbox tonight reflect the offerings of the world's market places. Golden music reaches the ears of the public as a result of the thoughtful patronage of merchants who would thus lend enticement to headache pills, house paint, radio tubes, movie tickets, automobile tires, package groceries, motor cars, washing machines, ointments, tours, political opinions and dozens of other necessities vital to modern existence. Various are the forms of appeal, ranging from the expensive trills of Metropolitan Opera prima donna through the repertory of male quartets, dance orchestras, salon ensembles, rural comedy groups and phonograph recordings. Fortunately, in the entertainment-advertising-entertainment sandwich, the advertising bologna-meat, is sliced rather thin,—or the entertainment bread is cut in thick slices, as you prefer. Perhaps to you the music signifies the meat, but not so to the man who pays the bills. For him the tunes are an expensive but necessary evil. Fortunate for us listeners that he remains willing to keep his direct appeal toned down to a modest mention here and there, hardly less casual than the conventional station announcement.

OF VARIOUS APPEAL

IF I WAS inclined to size up the entertainment possibilities in tonight's oleo, I'd top the list with Roxy, merely on a basis of past performances. He's going to build up his band around Mickey McKee, his whistling lady, but even if you dislike whistling ladies, you're bound to find an overflowing measure of musical goodness in his 60 minutes. Then, perhaps, I'd give a place to Warner Brothers' Vitaphone program, featuring Maria Kurenko, one of those hot-house sopranos of the Galli-Curci type. Of course, before that, I would have liked to hear "The Two Guitars" played by the Gypsies. Honorable mention would be made of General Motors. They are featuring Grace Moore, one of the Metropolitan's new singers who was once a Ziegfeld chorus lady. The United Choral Singers and the Music Room on the Columbia Chain would get a stir of passing interest, and the chain broadcast of the New York Automobile Show would probably have to step aside in favor of the Spanish program on the Columbia Chain.

FLIGHTS and FLIERS

by George W. Hamblin

Charlie Emerson, one of Skyways, Inc.'s pilots, lost his "sweetheart" last week. Charlie's plane burned up. Charlie is walking around with a face a foot long.

All through the summer this ship served Charlie and Skyways down at Wareham, and many were the happy hours that Charlie spent at the controls.

For some reason the plane became despondent, and no one could discover what was ailing it. Charlie tried coaxing, but it did no good. Finally the plane took it in her head to end it all, and burned herself up. At the inquest it was called suicide.

Charlie is flying another ship.

The Municipal Air Board was given a luncheon by Park Commissioner William P. Long at the Hotel Bellevue last Thursday, at which a resume of the work at the airport was given by the commissioner.

Capt. George K. Berry took off for the air meet at Miami, Fla., from Keene, N. H., Friday in a ship owned by Sydney Holcome, of that city.

We understand that Bob Fogg, of Concord, N. H., is on his way to the meet, and there is a possibility of Massachusetts Airways, of Springfield, sending a ship down.

The Boston Airport Corp experienced the thrill of taking two famous flyers for short trips. Lieut. Adolph M. Backstrom, in one of the Corp's Whirlwind Travel Airs, flew Capt. Harry Lyon, of Southern Cross fame, to look over Nantasket Beach for a possible takeoff on his proposed Boston to London to Boston flight next spring. The writer went along to fill up space and got quite a kick out of flying alongside Lyons. A little while later, Lieut. George R. Pond, one-time commander of the Air Base at Squantum, and then famous for many distance and endurance flights, went up with Backstrom for a sight-seeing jaunt over the city.

Dr. Frank H. Chase of Chelsea has laid his Travel Air up for the winter, but his wife, Mildred, is keeping up flying activities. She has over 10 hours solo to her credit and plans to take her private pilot's test when Federal Inspector Winthrop O. Sargent comes to Boston.

Skyways, Inc., has begun construction of a temporary hangar in the rear of the B. A. C. hangar, which will house their planes for the winter. In the spring Skyways plans to move the hangar either to their Lawrence or Wareham field.

The hangar is 80x60 feet, and is of steel construction.

Lieut. Frank C. Crowley, chief pilot for the Atlantic Airways, Inc., of Westerly, R. I., was brought home suffering from the flu. Eddie O'Toole went down after Frank.

Tom Croce has been making a tour of New England, demonstrating his breakable stick and taking orders. Five members of Tom's family are down with the flu.

The Pilgrim Air Service with its Lincoln-Page, is carrying on, although business is slow. Al Anderson, president of the company, is looking forward to the spring when he hopes to get in enough flying time to get a transport license, and hit the air meets with a bang.

We thought the air meet business reached its peak last year when seven meets took place on consecutive week-ends. It looks as though there are big things to come. Fields that were opened last year will stage meets again this year. Fields that are under construction will be opened with meets, and Harland F. Banks of the National Air Pageant Association, has plans for a series of barnstorming meets all over New England beginning in the early spring and lasting until the snow flies.

THE QUESTION BOX

(Questions pertaining to Commercial Aviation will be answered in this column every Monday. Address your queries to "Flights and Fliers," Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston, Mass.)

Q.—Why couldn't such flights as that of the Question Mark be brought to Boston? Surely our airport is large enough for some of this work. R. M. H., Revere.

A.—While there is no doubt that the Question Mark could take off from the Boston Airport, the only thing that prevented its doing so was the weather. Los Angeles is the only place that weather permits such a flight. Ask the Colonial Mail pilots about the weather around this neck of the woods, especially after dark.

KANE'S NEW STORE

ABSORBS NEWTON BUSINESS

The Kane Furniture Co., following its policy of expansion, has absorbed the Fox Furniture Co. at 292 Center st., Newton Corner. This is the 12th store in the Kane chain.

Continuing a policy of expansion, the Kane Furniture Co. has taken over the Fox Furniture Co., 292 Center st., Newton Corner, one of the finest suburban stores in this line.

This addition makes the 12th store in the Kane chain, the main establishment in which is at 740 Washington st., Boston. The purpose is to enable the large number of families in the Newton district to have the benefit of Kane service and prices in their own neighborhood.

Other places in the Kane chain are situated at Worcester, Hartford, Providence, Woonsocket, Fitchburg, Cambridge, Taunton and Gardner.

A form of credit that has revolutionized the purchase of furniture, known as the Kane Co-operative Furniture Club, having interest and dividend features which have proved of great help to customers, is provided in all this territory.

The expansion of the company is in accord with the trend of today toward big scale purchasing with resulting economies to customers. With the 12 Kane stores operating as one a tremendous force is exerted for lower prices.

The Savings Bank

For REAL SAFETY and Prosperity Go There

It is important for those earning money, the wise people SAVING MONEY, to know something about savings banks that many do not know.

In the first place, savings banks are not managed to provide profit for anybody connected with the banks.

Employes from the officer down are paid definite salaries, and that ends their money making, so far as the savings bank goes.

Savings banks are governed by strictest laws, written for the protection of savings bank depositors.

THERE IS NO SAFER PLACE TO PUT YOUR MONEY THAN A GOOD SAVINGS BANK.

And there is no surer road to independence and prosperity than to START A SAVINGS BANK ACCOUNT, and feed it steadily.

Each individual should realize that the first thing to achieve in this world is INDEPENDENCE, freedom from the rule and the orders of others.

And in this civilization there is no real independence without money.

Children should be taught the importance of saving. The child that has learned to add, subtract and multiply should be regularly adding to a savings bank account begun early in life, and never subtracting from it except in cases of ABSOLUTE NECESSITY, more than a small part for Christmas or other good uses.

We are creatures of habit, and the most important habit is that of SAVING.

Spending and squandering are habits, just as saving is a habit. One habit can be cultivated ALMOST as easily as another.

Unwise spending breeds worry and lack of sleep. Saving breeds contentment, sound sleep, courage to face the future, and self-respect.

Long ago Nathan Straus, the well-known philanthropist, said to a young friend, "Have you got any money saved up?" then added, "But don't tell me, for I know you haven't. But for heaven's sake don't tell anybody."

If you haven't anything saved up "DON'T TELL ANYBODY," but, TELL YOURSELF that you are one of the UNIMPORTANT people, one of those that don't count.

To have nothing saved up means TO LACK SELF-CONTROL. The man who lacks self-control, that cannot MAKE himself save, will not control or be the boss of others.

Start a savings bank account, no matter how small. Watch with interest and pride the growth of that which means INDEPENDENCE.

Read savings bank announcements in this or other newspapers. Make your deposits in a good bank, near your residence or your place of business, within easy reach.

There are two kinds of human beings, those with money, and those without. Make up your mind to be THE KIND THAT HAVE SOME MONEY and start your savings bank account TOMORROW.

Wanton Sway of Axe

Disappearance of Our Forests Involves Serious Danger to Prosperity

Our forests are disappearing at a rate that involves most serious danger to the future prosperity of our country. Little or nothing that counts is being done about it.

Out of 822,000,000 acres of virgin forest only about one-eighth remains. Half of that remaining eighth, roughly speaking, is held by the Government and is safe from devastation. The rest is being cut and burned with terrible speed. And there is nowhere in the world anything like a sufficient supply of the kinds of timber we use to take the place of what we have destroyed.

Major George P. Ahern, who established the Philippine Forest Service, organized the protection and utilization of forty million acres of public timberlands, and thereby laid the basis for a perpetual succession of timber crops, earned cash enough to pay all expense of administration, all the expenses of the Philippine Forest School and four million dollars to boot for the public treasury.

This outstanding success in forest conservation in the Philippines was built on Government control of lumbering.

Forest fires are steadily growing worse in America, and fire prevention is absolutely indispensable. But the axe carelessly used is the mother of forest fires. The axe and not fire is our greatest danger. Until the axe is controlled there can be no solution of the fire problem, or the problem of forest devastation.

Over the National Forests, which cover one-fifth of our ultimate possible timber-growing area, we have established Government control of the axe. These forests are safe, they are well handled, and they will produce larger and larger crops of timber as time goes on. Over the other four-fifths of our forest land the axe holds unregulated sway.

Either we must control the axe on these privately-owned lands, or the forests that are left will follow the road of those that are gone already.

"Love and Affection"

When Fred C. Thomson, the screen actor, bequeathed his widow "only love and affection," there was a chance for the cynical to curl their lips and comment disparagingly. But when it was learned that Mrs. Thomson asked her husband to leave no money to her because he had provided amply for her in life, there was nothing except praise of the couple to be heard. The actor's estate will go to his mother and child.

The wife who wins and holds the love and affection of her husband to the end of his life possesses much and has achieved success that could not be measured in money.

New York Day by Day

by O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Jan. 7—Diary of a modern Pepys: Up to say good-bye to Frazier and Emma Hunt against their voyaging to London again to live for a time and to call on Gene Fowler, the editor. And a gentleman to whom I spoke harshly for brushing me with his car sneered: "Too bad about you, you poor sap!"

So to labor awhile and then away to join a merry gathering and Senator Pat Harrison there telling the most amusing southern yarns I ever heard. And there were three I determined to remember and repeated them over and over, but an hour later they were gone.

To dinner with my wife and Frank Case, noticing a bulge in my pocket, inquired the cause and it was a slim volume called "Love" by William Lyon Phelps, and somehow I blushed like a schoolboy. Talked to Bert Lytle, whom I never met, and a personable fellow he is, too.

THE rich and blase young bloods in eternal quest of the super kick are now forming expeditions to dash to the North Pole. The fad was popularized by the polar pilgrimage of young Putnam, the publisher's son, and is the last word in expensive excitement chasing. The upkeep of a string of polo ponies or a yacht are cheap in comparison. Big sporting goods establishments have thrown open huge departments specializing in the outfitting of such journeys. Judging from the paraphernalia, the hardships must be terrible—sometimes we imagine the coffee in the thermos bottle might be actually tepid.

THERE is the story of a stripling who dropped around to be outfitted for the far north. He desired something in a great coat with a hood, perhaps to match his slim mustache. And he wanted it lined with silk oilskin. The salesman insisted the best thermal qualities were preserved by wearing the fur instead of oilskin next to the flesh. "Science has found," he said, "that with fur inside, the body is better able to withstand terrific cold." When that percolated, the young adventurer gave way to a fit of laughter, and when the clerk inquired the why of the merriment, he replied: "What a boob the buffalo is!"

IN large railroad centers a school of instruction for Pullman porters is maintained. They are taught to manipulate the berth, make beds, hang up the little hammocks and some even learn to open train windows. An old-time Pullman porter tells me he tries to give every "graduate" the most profitable instruction of all. And that is never to accept trifling sums right after performing some service. He advises them to refuse politely with: "O, never mind, thank you, sir. Just wait until the end of the trip." He says the average traveler calls a porter four times on a day's trip. Tipping piecemeal the total would be 40 cents. In refusing this the reward is likely to be a dollar.

EAST 42d street is providing extra cricks in the neck these days with two buildings in a block more than 50 stories high and another on the way.

LARGE and expensive New York hotels usually languish for two years in the doldrums after being thrown open. It is rare they are filled to capacity in less than three years. In the meantime they must exert themselves to give the few guests the impression things are booming. Nearly all, as a matter of fact, have three or four times as many servants as guests during the first year.

A LETTER from a wine juice company to Russ Westover, the cartoonist, has this poetic line at the top of its letter head: "As pure as a baby's dream."

CARE of New York's aged dependents has become a serious problem. There are 82 old folks' homes and all are crowded to capacity and have long waiting lists. Many who can afford the entrance fees are unable to be accommodated. The number of women seeking such havens is twice that of men. New York is only for the young, it seems. Parkins, my bicycle!

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

DARE to be different!

You have always felt that you were different—in feature, shape, coloring and mannerism you may resemble thousands of other human beings. And the circumstances of your life may be almost identical. Nevertheless you have stubbornly clung to the conviction that you—the essential you—are unlike all other people. You are sure that there is not, never was and never will be anyone exactly like you.

AND YOU ARE RIGHT.

YOU ARE DIFFERENT.

You have something to give to life which no one else can give—and you may take something from life which no one else can take. You can, if you will, make a unique adventure of life.

BUT IT WON'T BE EASY!

From the day you are born until the day you die society will try to make you conform—try to make you feel, think and act like everyone else. And your own nature will conspire with society against you.

Different thoughts — stimulating doubts—strange impulses will come to you, but you will be afraid to accept them lest they prove dangerous.

Unusual opportunities will arise, but you will reject them for fear people will laugh at you.

You will be the same as other people, but always you will want to be different. You will envy those who are different. You will say to yourself, wistfully, resentfully, that you, too, would be different if you had their luck.

Stop fooling yourself! You have their luck. What you lack is their courage.

You, too, could be different. You might not be different in their way, but you could be different in your own way if you would pay the price they have paid.

Difference is expensive.

It's a dangerous, lonely and often humiliating condition.

People who are different must break new trails for themselves and face risks which others do not face. They must be prepared to make many mistakes and endure much ridicule. They may lose money and friends and position—but if they have the strength of their convictions they will, in the end, achieve power. They will perceive things which other men do not perceive. They will find comfort which other men do not find.

Difference is worthwhile—but it costs a lot.

But whatever it costs—it's worthwhile.

Dare to be different!

Dare to think your own thoughts and direct your own life, even though no one else agrees with you.

Dare to be YOURSELF, instead of a feeble copy of everyone else.

ONLY THOSE WHO HAD DARED TO BE DIFFERENT HAVE TRULY LIVER.

"So This Is Bagdad!"

by Herbert Kaufman

American exporters and sales managers are advised to cock an eye at Mesopotamia.

Aladdin has refilled his lamp with Mosul oil, and Bagdad is back again in the miracle business.

Airships ride the skies where legendary carpets floated, and radio's ten thousand mile harp fills the desert with elfin music and song.

On the old road to Damascus, Lizzie Ford and caravan camels exchange honks. Spruce Assyrians, with tilted sombreros and in British regimentals, canter past a picture palace featuring Douglas Fairbanks in "The Thief of Bagdad."

At the soda counter, unveiled flappers, bobbed of hair and skirt, ply powder-puffs and lipstick, cross silken legs, and giggle over pomegranate sundaes.

Across the way, simon-pure sheiks in tailored togs dance through the wee sma' hours to the croon of Broadway jazz.

Fashion, the universalist, is marching eastward—following the trail of Alexander, to repeat his victories—even though it requires his methods; as witness the revolt in Afghanistan.

The Moslem world is shedding ancient habits—and garo—from Stamboul to Kabul. The muezzin in the minaret still summons the faithful to sun-down prayer, but "we moderns" are not soiling good English trousers or spoiling their creases in answer to his cry. Islam is too busy making money—and the grade—to bother with fogy notions.

The funny saucer-shape boats, in which their fathers crossed the Tigris, won't do for the younger generation, whose gasoline launches and outboard motors fill the river and toot derision at yesterday's antique craft.

Trucks are cruising in all directions, bearing freight from Trebizond and Tiflis and Beirut.

Steamers, laden with structural iron from India and beer from Japan, discharge cargoes at mid-city docks.

Progress has built a brick and steel hospital, erected reservoirs, filtration and cold-storage plants, brought running water and sewerage systems, oil stoves and department stores, hotels and beauty parlors, barber shops and telephone.

There isn't a beggar on the sidewalk, a leper at large, or a plague in action.

Meanwhile, Romance makes a last despairing stand amid shabby bazaars and crumbling khans—haggles beneath tattered awnings, sips coffee, puffs narghiles, and invokes the wrath of Allah on an infidel civilization and its reforms.

Sexton of magnificent memories and poetic pasts, her objurations can no more wave back the tide of reconstruction than Canute's gesture halted the ocean.

Twentieth century magic has lastingly come to show Arabia what piking wizardry the Arabian Nights celebrated.

Dynamo, gasoline and vacuum tube have marked the earth for conquest, enlightenment—and standardization.

Drop in on Aladdin's folks when you're calling on the trade.

"V" VERSES by Herbert Kaufman
Vim Vigor Victory

When the game's at full tilt and they're pressing you hard,
Keep your eyes on the cards—not your stack.
Tack your mind off your thumps
And quit coddling your bumps—
There are winnings ahead while bold hearts are high trumps,
But the hand that is tossed
In the discard is lost.
Stick it out to the last chip—bet back.

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

If you wish to be agreeable in society you must consent to be taught many things which you know already. —Lavater.

The cynic is one who knows the price of everything and the value of nothing. —Wilde.

The men who try to do something and fail are infinitely better than those who try to do nothing and succeed. —Jones.

I owe all my success in life to having been always a quarter of an hour beforehand. —Nelson.

The happiness of a man in this life does not consist in the absence but in the mastery of his passions. —Tennyson.
